SEEKING TO SAVE NEW ORLEANS FROM RUIN

MAY BLAST MORE SECTIONS OF THE LEVEES

WATER SEEMS RELUCTANT TO LEAVE THE OLD RIVER BED
FOUR BREAKS ALREADY MADE AT POYDRAS,
LA.

By ALFRED P. RECK
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New Orleans, La., April 30.—Water roared through levee breaks below New Orleans today, flooding St. Bernard and Plaquemine parishes, as engineers anxiously awaited lowering of the river level to announce the sacrifice had made New Orleans safe.

Further blasting probably will be necessary before sufficient water can pour over the deserted valley to save the Crescent City.

Initial attempts to start a major flow of water through the valley were unsuccessful, but more dynamiting, aided by picks and shovels gradually opened crevasses and allowed the river to sweep through the lowlands.

More blasting of the levee at Poydras where four breaks already have been made was expected today to increase the volume of water being released from the river.

Engineers estimate 250,000 to 300,000 gallons a minute outlet will be necessary to appreciably lower the river and save New Orleans from ruin.

Charges of dynamite were buried in the levee wall yesterday and discharged. The water trickled through the resulting breaks in a small stream. Picks and shovels were used to little effect in an attempt to widen the outlet.

Then other charges of explosives were placed and new sections of the dike blasted. The water seemed reluctant to leave the river bed. It is believed by some technicians that a thousand feet of the river wall will have to be blown out promptly if the river is to be lowered sufficiently to help New Orleans.

MIGHTY STREAMS CONTINUE RISING

By E. W. LEWIS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Vicksburg, Miss., April 30.—Several new breaks in the Mississippi river levee have been reported to relief authorities today and others are considered almost certain today as the mighty streams continue to rise. Government engineers announced levees have crumbled at Rolling Fork and Brunswick. New thousands will be made homeless if the levees gives way in other spots, but preparations have been made here and at Natchez which will permit speedy evacuation and reduce danger to life.

The river was creeping near the low industrial section of Vicksburg itself today and it seemed almost certain that railroad tracks connecting Vicksburg with the north would be inundated.

Hundreds of negroes from the Vicksburg refugee camp were mustered for the fight and countless sandbags were placed along the railroad tracks.

Strings of Pullman cars in which refugees were quartered near the river were moved to a place of greater security.

While the low-lying industrial section may be reached by the flood, it holds no threat for the main part of the city, located on high ground. Governor Dennis Murphree was expected to act today on appeal of relief workers that he intervene at Inverness, Miss., where plantation owners are said to be holding 1,000 negro field hands by force, refusing to allow them to be taken to safety in boats.

National guardsmen have not forced the issue, it was stated, because of lack of a formal proclamation of martial law. The plantation owners are said to threaten armed resistance if the negroes are removed.

The new refugee camp at Natchez, Miss., has facilities to care for 10,000 refugees, according to reports to relief headquarters here.

Relief boats plying over flooded bottom land are bringing refugees to the camp in large numbers. The boats are working continually in the miles of flooded territory, taking the homeless from roofs of houses and farms and hill tops where they fled to escape the water.

CHAPLIN'S WIFE GETS $1,500 A MONTH ALIMONY

Los Angeles, April 30.—(UP)—Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin today was engrossed in the problem of adjusting her household budget to $1,500 a month.
The amount was granted to her yesterday as temporary alimony pending trial of her divorce suit against her comedian husband, Charlie Chaplin.
Mrs. Chaplin testified at the hearing and explained that it was necessary for her to have $1,967 a month for living expenses.

NEW YORK FEARS DISORDER OF RADICALS

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY OBSERVED ON MAY FIRST

INDIGNATION FOMENTING OVER DEATH SENTENCES OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

New York, April 30.—(UP)—Five thousand reserve police were ordered today to guard New York against possible radical outbreaks on international labor day tomorrow.
Indignation over the death sentences of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted of murder in connection with a South Braintree, Mass., holdup, might lead to violence, police fear.

The residences of J. P. Morgan, Mayor Walker, Police Commissioner Warren, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Cardinal Hayes will be guarded, as will leading churches and public buildings which might be attacked. The police bomb and industrial squads will cruise the city in automobiles to prevent riots.

Rumors that communists planned two parades, for which no permits have been issued, led to the announcement that police would break up any attempt to hold unauthorized demonstrations.

Boston, April 30.—Judges and officials who have been identified with the seven-year-old Sacco-Vanzetti murder case, and in some instances their homes, will be guarded tomorrow against possible May day reprisals.
Because of the almost world-wide interest in the case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, the radicals who are facing the electric chair for murder, authorities feared the labor holiday might be marked by violence.

SHOT AND KILLED AS SUSPECTED CHINESE SMUGGLER

Los Angeles, April 30.—(UP)—A. J. Daugherty, student aviator of Somerset, Ohio, was shot and instantly killed by three federal immigration inspectors who shot down an airplane believed to contain Chinese smugglers here today.

His pilot and companion, Howard Day, escaped uninjured as the bullet-riddled plane fell to the ground at the Eagle air port, at Gardena, a suburb of this city.

The inspectors, F. G. Ellis, A. R. Dick and J. A. Nelson, declared they had information that a member of a large smuggling ring was about to land several Chinese at the air port this morning.

Armed with rifles, the agents went to the air port early this morning and at about 6:30 o'clock Daugherty's plane swooped down upon the field, appeared to make a landing, and then turned back into the air.

The inspectors, believing the "smugglers" were about to make their escape, fired a volley of bullets, one of which struck Daugherty in the head.

The plane went into a spin and fell to earth with a terrific crash.

According to Day, who miraculously escaped injury, he and his companion went up in the plane about an hour before to "take a spin."

After circling the field, they were about to make a landing when the inspectors opened fire.

Day declared he had no knowledge of his companion being a member of any smuggling ring and informed deputy sheriffs that Daugherty merely had been visiting him at the airport. An inquest was ordered immediately by Coroner Frank Nance.

RUTH SNYDER TELLS THIRD STORY HUSBAND'S DEATH

WILL REST 2 DAYS, THEN TO FACE CROSS EXAMINATION
THEREAFTER JUDD GRAY, HER LOVER, WILL TAKE THE STAND

By PAUL W. WHITE
Long Island City, N. Y., April 30.—For two days Ruth Snyder may rest, then she must go once more to the witness stand to face a cross-examination designed to tear down the third story she has told of the murder of her husband, Albert Snyder.

And within a day after the blond housewife has completed her testimony it is probable Judd Gray will be called upon to supply an entirely different account of the slaying, denouncing the woman's version as an invention calculated to save her from a verdict of first degree murder, for which the penalty is death.

When police first invaded the Queens Village home and found Snyder beaten, chloroformed and strangled, Mrs. Snyder told them he had been slain by burglars.

Then, the state charges, she "broke" and signed the confession introduced in evidence against her. In the statement she assumed almost equal responsibility with Gray in planning and perpetrating the murder.

But now, before a jury of her peers and the curious stares of one of the largest crowds ever to gather in a courtroom, Mrs. Snyder has denied all that has been said before, finally building up her story to the point where she swore she was not implicated in her husband's death except in her failure to subdue Gray. She even fought to save Snyder's life, she said, and acceded to her lover's demand that she lie to the police only through fear that he would kill her.

Her confession, she said, was extorted under mental and physical duress. Police started her and forbade her to sleep, she continued, before she desperately consented to sign her name to a statement prepared by an assistant district attorney.

Around the courthouse today, peacefully calm in contrast to the tumult of yesterday, discussion centered about the jury's acceptance of Mrs. Snyder's latest story.
During the woman's two hours on the stand the jurors paid her the compliment of rapt attention. Those in the front rows leaned forward on the box rail, those in the rear leaned on the chair in front and every face turned toward the somberly-clad figure whose even, cool voice was pleading for life.

But there was a factor in the testimony which did not find its way into the court record. That was the attitude of the crowd which overflowed the seating capacity of the courtroom.

Mrs. Snyder said, "Then I fainted." Men and women sneezed. Disbelief was made audible. And, because the accents of the room had been aided by microphones and loud speakers, the crowd's derision reached the jurors as surely as the sworn testimony of Ruth Snyder.

Court stood adjourned today until Monday morning, at which time Mrs. Snyder will go to the stand to resume her direct testimony. She then will be cross-examined and Edgar Hazleton, her attorney, hopes to complete her case before the end of the day.

Gray's counsel, promising that he too will testify in his own behalf, expect to submit their evidence in one day. Thus it is probable the case will go to the jury late Wednesday or Thursday.

MOTHER AND 3 CHILDREN PERISH IN HOME FIRE

Unlty, Sask., April 30.—(UP)—A mother and her three children perished late Thursday when fire destroyed a farm home near here. The victims were Mrs. Charles Murray and her three children, the eldest six years old. Murray jumped to safety from a second story window, but was so severely burned that he is expected to die.

WAS INJURED BY BEING BEATEN

Hibbing, Minn., April 30.—(UP)—L. R. Caylor, principal of the Kinney grade school, today characterized charges that he had flogged a pupil as "greatly exaggerated."

Caylor was charged in a suit filed against him in district court here Thursday for $15,000 damages, with inflicting permanent injuries to Arne Koski by beating him with a rubber hose. The suit was filed by the boy's father, Frank Koski.

The attack is alleged to have taken place in a classroom on Dec. 10. Koski charged that his son's kidney was displaced as a result of the alleged beating and was permanently injured.

BOY OF 15 SLEW HIS STEPMOTHER

LATTER 21 YEARS OLD, CRIME
COMMITTED NEAR POPLAR
BLUFF, MO.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., April 30.—(UP)—Earl Jackson, 15, charged with the slaying of his stepmother, Mrs. Mary Jackson, 21, was found guilty of first degree murder here last night and sentenced to serve the rest of his life in the Missouri state penitentiary.

Jackson heard Judge Charles L. Ferguson pronounce sentence without a show of emotion, maintaining an indifferent composure such as he had throughout the long trial.

Mrs. Jackson was killed several months ago and her body was found in the woods several miles from her home. In a confession to officers, the boy is alleged to have admitted the crime, saying his step-mother was despondent and asked him to take her life.

BELIEVE COLORADO WILL BE FLOATED EARLY TONIGHT

New York, April 30.—(UP)—The U. S. S. Colorado, which ran on Diamond Reef in New York harbor today, passed the hour of extreme low tide soon after 2 p. m., without being seriously damaged and it was believed the ship would be floated tonight.

A total of 16 tugs, called to give assistance, held the Colorado trim with lines and although at low tide the strain was heavy, the ship, engineers believed, was practically unharmed.

Tugs were able to move the vessel about four feet during the afternoon and the engineers believed that with the flood tide tonight the Colorado would be freed.

BOY OF TWELVE DROWNS IN LAKE

Minneapolis, April 30.—(UP)—Robert Girke, 12, drowned in Rice lake here today when he slipped from a small raft which he was paddling about the waters. Wilford MacHugh, 13, his companion, narrowly escaped the same fate when he attempted to rescue Girke.

FOUR NAVY FLIERS KILLED, LIGHTNING STRIKES SEAPLANE

MONSTER SEAPLANE H-16 TOP-
PLES 1,200 FEET TO DES-
TRUCTION

CHOPPY WATERS OF CHESA- PEAKE BAY SCANNED FOR BODIES

Norfolk, Va., April 30.—(UP)—The choppy waters of Chesapeake Bay were scanned today for bodies of four navy fliers killed when their monster seaplane H-16 was struck by lightning late yesterday and toppled 1,200 feet to destruction off Mathews, Va., 40 miles north of here.

An all-night search by the aircraft tender Teal of Hampton Roads naval air base failed to reveal the victims, but C. Briggs, Mathews county fisherman, reported finding one unidentified body and holding it at his home for the authorities.

The Teal expected to raise the H-16 today in the hope that the other bodies will be found in the plane.

The dead:
Lieut. Victor Francis Marinelli, 30, of Washington, D. C.

Lieut. George Watson Lehman, Cincinnati, the pilot, of Warsaw, Ind.

Chief Aviation Machinist Mate Loren Edward Poirer.
Aviation Machinist Mate George M. Michaels.

All the victims were married. Their wives were at Hampton Roads awaiting their return from Philadelphia, where they had gone to fetch the plane after an overhauling.

The H-16 and three other planes, all of the F5L type, largest in navy use, were on the way from Philadelphia to Hampton Roads when they encountered lowering black skies, lightning flashed.

Aviation Pilot P. J. Byrne, flying just in the rear, reported he heard an explosion above the roar of his own engines and saw the H-16 "go up in a puff of white smoke," indicating the oil tank had been hit.

The next moment the huge craft pitched crazily, turned on its back and with shattered wings dropped like a plummet into the bay with a mighty upheaval of waters.

Byrne and another pilot swooped low to give aid but could find only tattered bits of wreckage, although they searched an hour. The third accompanying plane flew to Hampton Roads to summon the Teal.

Byrne said it was impossible that any of the four occupants of the H-16 could have survived.

The district in which the accident occurred is becoming a "hoodoo" for navy fliers. At almost the same spot Lieut. Frank H. Conant, Schneider Cup race flier, was killed last fall. Within 25 miles, near Messick, Va. is the swamp where Lieut. Commander Noel Davis and Lieut. Stanton Hall Wooster lost their lives last Tuesday in the crash of their "American Legion" plane in which they hoped to span the Atlantic.

FREIGHT COLLIDES WITH GASOLINE SPEEDER; 3 KILLED

Westfield, N. Y., April 30.—(UP)—Three men were killed and another is dying following collision of a freight train and gasoline speeder, the engine turning over into a ditch and the train piling up nearby, pinning all of the freight crew under the cars.

SLAYER OF 2-GUN SCREEN COWBOY REMAINS MYSTERY

Los Angeles, April 30.—(UP)—Who fired the shots that killed Tom Kerrick, two-gun screen cowboy, was still an official mystery today.

Kerrick "was killed by two gun-shot wounds in the chest, fired by a pistol held in the hand of an unknown person," a coroner's verdict said yesterday. Further investigation was recommended.

Mrs. Sarah Kerrick, his widow, is being held on a suspicion of murder. Four others are held as material witnesses.

COLORADO GOES AGROUND ON DIAMOND REEF

BETWEEN BATTERY AND GOV- ERNOR'S ISLAND IN NEW YORK HARBOR

TEN TUGS QUICKLY ANSWER VESSEL'S CALL FOR HELP

New York, April 30.—(UP)—The battleship Colorado went aground on Diamond Reef between the Battery and Governor's Island in New York harbor today.

Ten tugs answered the call for help and stood by while engineers after a preliminary inspection said they believed the vessel could be floated this evening at high tide.

There may be serious difficulty, however, at about 2 P. M., when low tide will leave but 27 feet of water covering the reef.

The sight of a warship ashore in the harbor drew hundreds to the Battery, where they could see vessel resting on the rocks of the reef, south of the Manhattan-Governor's Island ferry channel, its bow drawing 31 feet of water and its stern 34 feet.

The decks were lined with men. The Colorado left its North river anchorage to tow to the Brooklyn navy yard during the morning. Watchers ashore saw that it was working far to the south side of the channel and noticed the propellers churning up mud. The Colorado had just passed the battleship Maryland, dividing the channel with her.

After the Maryland passed, the Colorado stopped and its stern seemed to settle slightly. It signalled help and tugs and navy tenders responded.

Engineers went aboard immediately. In the channel at that point there is considerable loose rock from blasting operations conducted in the widening of the channel. It was uncertain whether the Colorado was held by the reef itself or by this rocky fringe of debris.

The position of the Colorado was such that it did not block the channel, and ferry traffic continued uninterrupted.

The Colorado is a ship of 32,600 tons, 620 feet long and with a beam of 97 feet.

This is the second accident since the battle fleet arrived here yesterday morning, an explosion aboard the airplane carrier Langley having disabled that vessel temporarily.

CAPT. LINDBERGH POSTPONES N. Y. TO PARIS FLIGHT

San Diego, Calif., April 30.—(UP)—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, former air mail pilot, will not take off today on his proposed St. Louis-New York to Paris flight, he announced.

Further tests and work on his Ryan monoplane will be necessary before he can successfully make the trip, he said, announcing the postponement. If tests and performance of the craft prove satisfactory, Lindbergh hopes to get off early next week, he said.

NEW HIGH RECORD FOR STOCK EXCHANGE SEAT IN NEW YORK

New York, April 30.—(UP)—The price of a membership in the New York Stock exchange today was reported to have soared to $195,000, the third new high record established this week.

A sale at that price was reported to have been arranged. Identity of the parties in the deal was not disclosed.

INVITED BY MISSISSIPPI VALLEY GOVERNORS

PRESIDENT WISHES FIRST TO
SEE SECRETARY OF COM-
MERCE HOOVER

SENATOR HARRISON THINKS IT
NOT NECESSARY TO CALL
SPECIAL SESSION

Washington, April 30.—(UP)—President Coolidge today took under consideration an invitation of Senator Pat Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, acting for Mississippi valley governors, for the president to visit the flood regions.

Harrison said the president indicated a desire to await return of Secretary of Commerce Hoover from his flood inspection trip before making any decision on the invitation, however.

After his call Harrison said there is no immediate need for an extra session of congress, adding, however, farmers and citizens of the flood zone will direly need credit facilities soon for reconstruction. He advocated an extra session in event financiers and government officials cannot devise means of meeting this need.

He proposed a comprehensive investigation for future flood control and suggested levees, spillways and reservoirs ought to be built on the upper Mississippi to prevent repetition of the present calamity.

Secretary of War Davis today advocated a thorough flood control survey by army engineers, saying the war department is prepared to undertake this if congress will appropriate necessary funds. Such a survey, he indicated, could devise means of coping with the recurring floods.

With its director of agricultural extension work, Dr. C. W. Warburton, already on the ground, the agriculture department prepared to ascertain exact flood damage to crops so as to develop future farm relief plans. Crop estimators in the Mississippi valley flood states were ordered to report to Memphis next week for mapping a survey.

The tremendous farm relief problem facing the government and the states is indicated in preliminary estimates of damage to cotton, corn sugar cane, truck produce and, in some sections, wheat.

Experts estimate 1,000,000 bales of growing cotton has been destroyed with 2,000,000 acres of cotton land inundated. This represents about $100,000,000 at present spot prices, as part of it is high grade long staple cotton area in the Delta will be flooded.

But beyond the growing cotton of this year's crop, many thousands of bales carried over from last year's record crop awaiting a market and stored in warehouses in the flooded area have been caught in the flood. Scattered reports already received indicate this loss may be considerable.

Indications now are a large part of the sugar cane in the Delta section will be destroyed, thus putting the growers two years behind as a crop requires two years. This loss will be doubly damaging as cane growers were experimenting with several new varieties this year for seed for next year's crop.

Truck gardening in the Delta region will be struck a heavy blow, as yet unestimated. Corn was damaged upriver by the flood waters, and wheat in southeastern Missouri was inundated.

Every great misfortune, however, has its bright side—for somebody else. The loss of cotton by floods has boosted the price a cent and a quarter since March 20. Growers in "dry" sections of Mississippi already are planting additional acreage, according to reports here. Growers of long staple cotton in irrigated districts of Arizona, New Mexico and California may follow suit.

Waterlogged cotton can be used for some purposes, so stored cotton which is inundated is not a total loss. If it is recovered after two or three weeks and dried quickly, it can be used for low grade fabrics, rayon (artificial silk), artificial leather and many other things.

BEATEN

Hibbing, Minn., April 30.—(UP)—L. R. Caylor, principal of the Kinney grade school, today characterized charges that he had flogged a pupil as "greatly exaggerated."

Caylor was charged in a suit filed against him in district court here Thursday for $15,000 damages, with inflicting permanent injuries to Arne Koski by beating him with a rubber hose. The suit was filed by the boy's father, Frank Koski.

The attack is alleged to have taken place in a classroom on Dec. 10. Koski charged that his son's kidney was displaced as a result of the alleged beating and was permanently injured.

BOY OF 15 SLEW HIS STEPMOTHER

LATTER 21 YEARS OLD, CRIME
COMMITTED NEAR POPLAR
BLUFF, MO.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., April 30.—(UP)—Earl Jackson, 15, charged with the slaying of his stepmother, Mrs. Mary Jackson, 21, was found guilty of first degree murder here last night and sentenced to serve the rest of his life in the Missouri state penitentiary.

Jackson heard Judge Charles L. Ferguson pronounce sentence without a show of emotion, maintaining an indifferent composure such as he had throughout the long trial.

Mrs. Jackson was killed several months ago and her body was found in the woods several miles from her home. In a confession to officers, the boy is alleged to have admitted the crime, saying his stepmother was despondent and asked him to take her life.

BELIEVE COLORADO WILL BE FLOATED EARLY TONIGHT

New York, April 30.—(UP)—The U. S. S. Colorado, which ran on Diamond Reef in New York harbor today, passed the hour of extreme low tide soon after 2 p. m., without being seriously damaged and it was believed the ship would be floated tonight.

A total of 16 tugs, called to give assistance, held the Colorado trim with lines and although at low tide the strain was heavy, the ship, engineers believed, was practically unharmed.

Tugs were able to move the vessel about four feet during the afternoon and the engineers believed that with the flood tide tonight the Colorado would be freed.

MOTHER AND 3 CHILDREN PERISH IN HOME FIRE

Unity, Sask., April 30.—(UP)—A mother and her three children perished late Thursday when fire destroyed a farm home near here. The victims were Mrs. Charles Murray and her three children, the eldest six years old. Murray jumped to safety from a second story window, but was so severely burned that he is expected to die.

FOUR NAVY FLIERS KILLED, LIGHTNING STRIKES SEAPLANE

MONSTER SEAPLANE H-16 TOP-
PLES 1,200 FEET TO DES-
TRUCTION

CHOPPY WATERS OF CHESA-
PEAKE BAY SCANNED
FOR BODIES

Norfolk, Va., April 30.—(UP)—The choppy waters of Chesapeake Bay were scanned today for bodies of four navy fliers killed when their monster seaplane H-16 was struck by lightning late yesterday and toppled 1,200 feet to destruction off Mathews, Va., 40 miles north of here.

An all-night search by the aircraft tender Teal of Hampton Roads naval air base failed to reveal the victims, but C. Briggs, Mathews county fisherman, reported finding one unidentified body and holding it at his home for the authorities.

The Teal expected to raise the H-16 today in the hope that the other bodies will be found in the plane.

The dead:

Lieut. Victor Francis Marinelli, 30, of Washington, D. C.

Lieut. George Watson Lehman, Cincinnati, the pilot, of Warsaw, Ind.

Chief Aviation Machinist Mate Loren Edward Pomeroy.

Aviation Machinist Mate George M. Michaels.

All the victims were married. Their wives were at Hampton Roads awaiting their return from Philadelphia, where they had gone to fetch the plane after an overhauling.

The H-16 and three other planes, all of the F5L type, largest in navy use, were on the way from Philadelphia to Hampton Roads when they encountered lowering black skies, lightning flashed.

Aviation Pilot P. J. Byrne, flying just in the rear, reported he heard an explosion above the roar of his own engines and saw the H-16 "go up in a puff of white smoke," indicating the oil tank had been hit.

The next moment the huge craft pitched crazily, turned on its back and with shattered wings dropped like a plummet into the bay with a mighty upheaval of waters.

Byrne and another pilot swooped low to give aid but could find only tattered bits of wreckage, although they searched an hour. The third accompanying plane flew to Hampton Roads to summon the Teal.

Byrne said it was impossible that any of the four occupants of the H-16 could have survived.

The district in which the accident occurred is becoming a "hoodoo" for navy fliers. At almost the same spot Lieut. Frank H. Conant, Schneider Cup race flier, was killed last fall. Within 25 miles, near Messick, Va., is the swamp where Lieut. Commander Noel Davis and Lieut. Stanton Hall Wooster lost their lives last Tuesday in the crash of their "American Legion" plane in which they hoped to span the Atlantic.

FREIGHT COLLIDES WITH GASOLINE SPEEDER; 3 KILLED

Westfield, N. Y., April 30.—(UP)—Three men were killed and another is dying following collision of a freight train and gasoline speeder, the engine turning over into a ditch and the train piling up nearby, pinning all of the freight crew under the cars.

BOY OF TWELVE DROWNS IN LAKE

Minneapolis, April 30.—(UP)—Robert Girke, 12, drowned in Rice lake here today when he slipped from a small raft which he was paddling about the waters. Wilford MacHugh, 13, his companion, narrowly escaped the same fate when he attempted to rescue Girke.

SLAYER OF 2-GUN SCREEN COWBOY REMAINS MYSTERY

Los Angeles, April 30.—(UP)—Who fired the shots that killed Tom Kerrick, two-gun screen cowboy, was still an official mystery today.

Kerrick "was killed by two gunshot wounds in the chest, fired by a pistol held in the hand of an unknown person," a coroner's verdict said yesterday. Further investigation was recommended.

Mrs. Sarah Kerrick, his widow, is being held on a suspicion of murder. Four others are held as material witnesses.

COLORADO GOES AGROUND ON DIAMOND REEF

BETWEEN BATTERY AND GOV-ERNOR'S ISLAND IN NEW YORK HARBOR

TEN TUGS QUICKLY ANSWER
VESSEL'S CALL FOR HELP

New York, April 30.—(UP)—The battleship Colorado went aground on Diamond Reef between the Battery and Governor's Island in New York harbor today.

Ten tugs answered the call for help and stood by while engineers after a preliminary inspection said they believed the vessel could be floated this evening at high tide.

There may be serious difficulty, however, at about 2 P. M., when low tide will leave but 27 feet of water covering the reef.

The sight of a warship ashore in the harbor drew hundreds to the Battery, where they could see vessel resting on the rocks of the reef, south of the Manhattan Governor's Island ferry channel, its bow drawing 31 feet of water and its stern 34 feet.

The decks were lined with men. The Colorado left its North river anchorage to tow to the Brooklyn navy yard during the morning. Watchers ashore saw that it was working far to the south side of the channel and noticed the propellers churning up mud. The Colorado had just passed the battleship Maryland, dividing the channel with her.

After the Maryland passed, the Colorado stopped and its stern seemed to settle slightly. It signalled help and tugs and navy tenders responded.

Engineers went aboard immediately. In the channel at that point there is considerable loose rock from blasting operations conducted in the widening of the channel. It was uncertain whether the Colorado was held by the reef itself or by this rocky fringe of debris.

The position of the Colorado was such that it did not block the channel, and ferry traffic continued uninterrupted.

The Colorado is a ship of 32,600 tons, 620 feet long and with a beam of 97 feet.

This is the second accident since the battle fleet arrived here yesterday morning, an explosion aboard the airplane carrier Langley having disabled that vessel temporarily.

CAPT. LINDBERGH
POSTPONES N. Y.
TO PARIS FLIGHT

San Diego, Calif., April 30.—(UP)—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, former air mail pilot, will not take off today on his proposed St. Louis-New York to Paris flight, he announced.

Further tests and work on his Ryan monoplane will be necessary before he can successfully make the trip, he said, announcing the postponement.

If tests and performance of the craft prove satisfactory, Lindbergh hopes to get off early next week, he said.

NEW HIGH RECORD FOR STOCK EXCHANGE SEAT IN NEW YORK

New York, April 30.—(UP)—The price of a membership in the New York Stock exchange today was reported to have soared to $195,000, the third new high record established this week.

A sale at that price was reported to have been arranged. Identity of the parties in the deal was not disclosed.

INVITED BY MISSISSIPPI VALLEY GOVERNORS

PRESIDENT WISHES FIRST TO
SEE SECRETARY OF COM-
MERCE HOOVER

SENATOR HARRISON THINKS IT
NOT NECESSARY TO CALL
SPECIAL SESSION

Washington, April 30.—(UP)—President Coolidge today took under consideration an invitation of Senator Pat Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, acting for Mississippi valley governors, for the president to visit the flood regions.

Harrison said the president indicated a desire to await return of Secretary of Commerce Hoover from his flood inspection trip before making any decision on the invitation, however.

After his call Harrison said there is no immediate need for an extra session of congress, adding, however, farmers and citizens of the flood zone will direly need credit facilities soon for reconstruction. He advocated an extra session in event financiers and government officials cannot devise means of meeting this need.

He proposed a comprehensive investigation for future flood control and suggested levees, spillways and reservoirs ought to be built on the upper Mississippi to prevent repetition of the present calamity.

Secretary of War Davis today advocated a thorough flood control survey by army engineers, saying the war department is prepared to undertake this if congress will appropriate necessary funds. Such a survey, he indicated, could devise means of coping with the recurring floods.

With its director of agricultural extension work, Dr. C. W. Warburton, already on the ground, the agriculture department prepared to ascertain exact flood damage to crops so as to develop future farm relief plans. Crop estimators in the Mississippi valley flood states were ordered to report to Memphis next week for mapping a survey.

The tremendous farm relief problem facing the government and the states is indicated in preliminary estimates of damage to cotton, corn sugar cane, truck produce and, in some sections, wheat.

Experts estimate 1,000,000 bales of growing cotton has been destroyed with 2,000,000 acres of cotton land inundated. This represents about $100,000,000 at present spot prices, as part of it is high grade long staple cotton area in the Delta will be flooded.

But beyond the growing cotton of this year's crop, many thousands of bales carried over from last year's record crop awaiting a market and stored in warehouses in the flooded area have been caught in the flood. Scattered reports already received indicate this loss may be considerable.

Indications now are a large part of the sugar cane in the Delta section will be destroyed, thus putting the growers two years behind as a crop requires two years. This loss will be doubly damaging as cane growers were experimenting with several new varieties this year for seed for next year's crop.

Truck gardening in the Delta region will be struck a heavy blow, as yet unestimated. Corn was damaged upriver by the flood waters, and wheat in southeastern Missouri was inundated.

Every great misfortune, however, has its bright side—for somebody else. The loss of cotton by floods has boosted the price a cent and a quarter since March 20. Growers in "dry" sections of Mississippi already are planting additional acreage, according to reports here. Growers of long staple cotton in irrigated districts of Arizona, New Mexico and California may follow suit.

Waterlogged cotton can be used for some purposes, so stored cotton which is inundated is not a total loss. If it is recovered after two or three weeks and dried quickly, it can be used for low grade fabrics, rayon (artificial silk), artificial leather and many other things.

FEATURED MUSICIANS

Confrey Played Original Compositions, Including "Kitten on the Keys"

The largest and most successful dance of the season to be given by the United Commercial Travelers was held last evening in the U. C. T. auditorium. Several hundred attended the concert and dance including a very large number of visitors from towns as distant as Duluth, Wadena, Minneapolis.

Zez Confrey, world renowned pianist and his orchestra were the featured musicians of the evening. Brainerd is to be congratulated on having been able to secure this orchestra which was said to be the best ever heard on a local dance floor.

The concert began at 8:30 o'clock, and numbers were given by the orchestra, individual members and also by Mr. Confrey himself, who played some of his original compositions including "Kitten on the Keys." One of his numbers that was especially enjoyed was a piece played as it had been composed and then played in a manner to resemble a player piano in any restaurant.

The drummer, dressed in a hula hula costume and billed as Madame Hawkins gave an excellent exhibition of the Black Bottom.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER
BEING REPAIRED

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 30.—(UP)—Crippled when a steamship exploded, damaging the generator which was propelling it into New York harbor with the United States fleet, the aircraft carrier Langley was undergoing repairs at the Brooklyn navy yard today.

One seaman, in the engine room at the time, was burned by live steam.

It was not until almost midnight that the ship reached the navy yard.

SEEK NEW ANTI-SMUGGLING TREATY

Washington, April 30.—(UP)—Canada has invited the United States to send representatives to Ottawa next month to work a new anti-smuggling treaty more rigid than the present one, it was learned at the treasury today. Formal acceptance of the invitation is being postponed until Wm. Phillips, new U. S. minister to Canada, returns from Belgium, such a treaty, if negotiated, will be the third of a series designed to curtail rum running into the United States from Cuba, the West Indies and Canada.

Plays Brilliantly for Concert and Dance, Orchestra Gains Commendations

FEATURED MUSICIANS

Confrey Played Original Compositions, Including "Kitten on the Keys"

The largest and most successful dance of the season to be given by the United Commercial Travelers was held last evening in the U. C. T. auditorium. Several hundred attended the concert and dance including a very large number of visitors from towns as distant as Duluth, Wadena, Minneapolis.

Zez Confrey, world renowned pianist and his orchestra were the featured musicians of the evening. Brainerd is to be congratulated on having been able to secure this orchestra which was said to be the best ever heard on a local dance floor.

The concert began at 8:30 o'clock, and numbers were given by the orchestra, individual members and also by Mr. Confrey himself, who played some of his original compositions including "Kitten on the Keys." One of his numbers that was especially enjoyed was a piece played as it had been composed and then played in a manner to resemble a player piano in any restaurant.

The drummer, dressed in a hula hula costume and billed as Madame Hawkins gave an excellent exhibition of the Black Bottom.

Will Appear in Concert Tuesday Evening at Norwegian-Danish Lutheran Church

The Swedish Glee club will be heard in concert Tuesday evening May 3, at the Norwegian-Danish Lutheran church at 8 o'clock. The Glee club is composed entirely of men and has appeared on various programs from time to time.

The program will consist of Swedish and American numbers and will be interspersed with vocal solos by Miss Esther Fogelstrom and violin solos by Olaf Ness accompanied by Miss Edie Drexler.

Wiener Roast

Members of the Junior Order of Moose enjoyed a wiener roast last evening on the river flats. Songs were sung and ukeleles were played around a large camp fire after which the thirty couples which attended went to the Gilbert Lake pavilion to dance until a late hour.

Macalester Singers Sang and Played at First Methodist Church
Last Night

COLLEGE SONGS POPULAR

Glee Club Appeared Under Auspices of the Local
Y. M. C. A.

Encored time and again, the Macalester Glee club, last night sang and played for a delightful audience at the First Methodist church. Every number received a recall and even at the last the listeners were loathe to leave the singers go.

The program was varied by solos, quartets, duets and ensemble numbers. An especially pleasing duet was the combination of violin and saxophone played by Messrs. Ahlberg and Nelson. "The Alp Maid's Dream" was followed by a popular number, very appealing and beautiful.

All lights were turned off for the last number and grouped around the light of two candles, college songs dear to the heart of undergraduate and alumni, were sung in typical college fashion. Solemn and inspiring songs glorifying the alma mater and gay and light varsity melodies sung around the campus were ended with the Macalester cheer.

The Glee club appeared under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A. and also sang for the students in the high school yesterday afternoon. The men were feted at a supper last evening by a group of ladies of the Methodist aid in the basement of the church.

The Glee club has nearly completed its tour having played at Minneapolis, March 2, South St. Paul, Silver Lake, Cokato, Long Prairie, Wadena, Park Rapids, Carlton, twice at Duluth, Cloquet, Virginia, Coleraine, and Grand Rapids. Today they play at St. Cloud which will be followed by a concert at Macalester and two at St. Paul.

The personnel of the club included, first tenors, W. E. Bridge, '27; L. V. Brown, '30; E. E. Heed, '27; W. F. Janssen, '27; P. E. Nelson, '29; P. H. Nettleton, '30; second tenors, V. E. Governor Theodore Christianson announced today that arrangements have been made to send two state health officials to the scene of the suffering to aid in relief plans.

Nearly $20,000 has been raised in St. Paul to date and stations are being set up in various sections of the city to receive contributions. Women will be in charge of all booths dressed in Red Cross uniforms under the direction of the Women's Greater St. Paul committee.

Reports from all sections of the state are that a generous response to the call for funds is being made.

'OH, NOAH, TELL US WHAT TO DO'

Washington, April 30. — (UP) — Red Cross workers in the flood area, swamped with relief work, found time to report the following to national headquarters here today.

Five hundred negroes, marooned without supplies in south Arkansas, were singing, when rescued by a Red Cross boat.

"Noah sailed the sea for 40 days. Oh, Noah, tell us what to do."

While a baby was being born in a refugee box car at Helena, Ark., a long-eared hound beneath the car became the mother of six bouncing puppies. "All doing well."

PICTURE STAR SECTION HAND

Alec B. Francis According to Deerwood Enterprise Worked at Deerwood

STAYED AT MCCARVIL'S

Regaled Friends as Conversationalist, Musician and Entertainer

According to the Deerwood Enterprise, Alec B. Francis, the motion picture actor, who recently starred in "The Return of Peter Grimm" was at one time a Deerwood section hand. When Francis first saw Deerwood in the summer of 1901, he was "down and out" financially speaking. He was traveling on a "tie pass" when he accented the foreman, James McCarvil, out there on the railroad tracks and asked for a job. Mr. McCarvil sized up the wanderer and noted that he did not look like a laborer. "I don't believe you can stand this kind of work," he replied. But Francis insisted that he was badly in need of a job and so he was enrolled in the time book as "Hugh Strange," the name he gave.

It was soon discovered that the section hand was a brilliant conversationalist, musician and entertainer. He was the life of the evening gatherings at the McCarvil home where he lived during his two months sojourn in Deerwood. After weary hours of the day spent in "raising track" or "tamping ties" he would relax after supper and give wonderful interpretations on the section house parlor organ.

One day Colin Thomson of Duluth met Francis at Jim Brownlee's and took him away to the Zenith city, procuring a position for him in a grain elevator. That was the last his Deerwood friends saw or heard of Francis until recent years when he has appeared in leading roles.

Francis' real name is Alec Francis Budd. He comes from a distinguished English family, served with a Highland regiment in India, wandered through the Canadian wilds and, then he came to Minnesota. His adventurous and romantic career from section hand to movie star reads like fiction, but is an absorbing life story of a fine character.

Fears Only June Bugs

June bugs hold more terror for Ethel Hawkins of Indianapolis than does the painting of a smokestack which involves swinging on a scaffold, 175 feet above the street. Mrs. Hawkins' husband was a stepladder until he retired, and her brother is a member of the same craft, says the American Magazine. She says painting tall buildings and smokestacks does not bother her in the least, but that "if a silly June bug should come clicking along, why, that would be a different story. I am not afraid of anything—bandits or burglars or even bats—but bugs give me the 'willies.' I'd rather paint a dozen 200-foot towers than have one of those horrible insects in my room, whether it touches me or not."

Mississippi Barges

Not long ago there was put into commission between St. Louis and New Orleans the first of a fleet of 36 steel barges, whereupon a great revival of traffic on the Mississippi took place. The barges are giving an express service of 16 miles an hour at less than rail freight rates and carrying a full cargo of 1,600 tons. The barge resembles no other craft afloat on American inland waters. She has a waterproof steel cargo box and is propelled by four internal combustion engines. An electric traveling crane and a refrigerator plant are also installed. Ten to twelve men can do the work.

Leaves 97 Descendants

Seven weeks after celebrating her one hundredth birthday, Mrs. Mary Cowles died at the home of her daughter as Marickville, New Zealand, recently. She was a native of Inverness, Scotland, and was twenty-one years of age when she arrived in Sydney. She was twice married. Her second husband died just before the war. Thirteen of her grandsons served at the front, and one was killed. The eldest of her living children resides at Mackay, Queensland, and is seventy-four years of age. There are 97 descendants, the eldest of the great-grandchildren being twenty-one years of age.

Giving the Youngster a Home

This future captain of industry was completely bored by the business of the cameraman and decided to let his pretty nurse do all of the smiling. He doesn't know yet, and probably never will, that he has cause to smile broadly with happiness. The Salvation Army gave him a daddy. Born out of wedlock in the divisional maternity home, at St. Paul, which serves Minnesota and South Dakota, a Salvation Army lassie, after four months of effort effected a marriage between father and mother. The family is now happy, in a new community, and the bouncing youngster has a name and a "fair start" in life. Three girls from Crow Wing county and 283 girls in this division were given care at this home last year.

Spread of Infection

Blamed on Handshake

The question has often occurred to us: Why is a handshake? Isn't it only a relic of the past with which we might profitably dispense? Much has been written about the custom, its origin and its meanings; yet nothing to justify it from a sanitary standpoint.

That it can convey infection can be proved by laboratory tests. The warm, moist surface of the hand forms a very favorable resting place for bacteria while waiting for further transfers to our friends. Germs are no respecters of person or relationship. The most devoted of parents are physically just as capable of transferring infection to their children as anyone else.

It is a strange thing, but nearly universal, that people cough and sneeze into or upon their right hands—the ones with which they shake hands. Germs cling very readily to the skin of the hands and it requires much mechanical and chemical scrubbing and disinfection to remove them; yet, so subtle little things that they are, they are ever ready to transfer their afflictions from one hand to another, or from hand to lip or food. Under ordinary conditions the human hand is a culture bed of germs and liable at any time to have its millions of germs augmented, or transferred, as the occasion presents. If you want to realize the possibilities of the transfer of disease by the hand just watch any one for a day and see where he puts his hands, what he allows to touch and soil them and how democratic he is in passing his germs along to his friends and family.

That the custom of handshaking will ever go out of use may be doubted, but that it is a means of conveying disease is susceptible of scientific demonstration. Our only hope is that people realizing the danger will take every precaution against putting their hands where they may either acquire or transmit infection. The Chinese have a very commendable custom of shaking their own hands when meeting friends, a custom we might well adopt. We make a lot of fun of China, but often may profit by her ancient wisdom if we but would. At least, your own germs will stay at home if you shake your own hand.—Ohio Health News.

Surroundings of Race

Always an Influence

Given one race of people spread over an area as large and varied as this hemisphere, only time is needed to produce a variety of modes of living. In the forests of the east of this country arose the misunderstood and chivalrous Iroquois—dwellers in the "Long House." To the west the prairies produced a somewhat lower nomadic type. In the southern swamps the Seminoles led another kind of life. In the deserts of the Southwest life was harder, and there we find first the cliff dwellers and later the Hopi.

The history of civilization as a whole shows that one particular kind of locale has always been particularly favorable to the development of civilizations—a tropical or semi-tropical aridity with possibilities of not too difficult irrigation. Egypt was that way, and Mesopotamia. Also was probably the equally ancient kingdom of Elam. These were the places where civilization in a real sense first developed, and the same general sort of conditions led to the development of civilization in Mexico and in Peru.—John Murray Reynolds in Adventure Magazine.

Hard to Trace Origin

of "Auld Lang Syne"

The origin of "Auld Lang Syne," invariably sung as the New Year comes in wherever two or three Britons are gathered together, is rather obscure. If Robert Burns can be trusted, and the song really did belong to the "folk" of Scotland, Burns' own account of the matter in a letter of 1795, was "One song more and I have done—'Auld Lang Syne.'"

"The air is but mediocre, but the old song—which has never been in print nor even in MS. until I took it down from an old man's singing, is enough to recommend any air." According to one Scottish authority, however, the beautiful air to which the song is now invariably sung is not the original one which Burns pronounced to be mediocre, but one adopted from an old lowland melody.

This was entitled, "I Fee'd a Law at Michaelmas," and in Gow's collections of reels it appears as "Sir Alexander Don's Strathspey." As to the words, adds our authority, the probability is that verses two and three—with their note of more tender sensibility—were added by the poet to the older set.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"While There's Life—"

Life in this old vale of tears and laughter, especially the former, is discouraging in some ways and we have devoted twenty-five years, hand-running, to trying to cultivate sufficient tact to convince wife's relatives in a nice way that it wouldn't be convenient to have a visit from them at the time mentioned, and look at us now.—Ohio State Journal.

June bugs hold more terror for Ethel Hawkins of Indianapolis than does the painting of a smokestack which involves swinging on a scaffold 175 feet above the street. Mrs. Hawkins' husband was a stevedock until he retired, and her brother is a member of the same craft, says the American Magazine. She says painting tall buildings and smokestacks does not bother her in the least, but that "if a silly June bug should come clicking along, why, that would be a different story. I am not afraid of anything—bandits or burglars or even bats—but bugs give me the 'willies.' I'd rather paint a dozen 200-foot towers than have one of those horrible insects in my room, whether it touches me or not."

Mississippi Barges

Not long ago there was put into commission between St. Louis and New Orleans the first of a fleet of 93 steel barges, whereupon a great revival of traffic on the Mississippi took place. The barges are giving an express service of 16 miles an hour at less than rail freight rates and carrying a full cargo of 1,900 tons. The barge resembles no other craft afloat on American inland waters. She has a waterproof steel cargo box and is propelled by four internal combustion engines. An electric traveling crane and a refrigerator plant are also installed. Ten to twelve men can do the work.

Leaves 97 Descendants

Seven weeks after celebrating her one hundredth birthday, Mrs. Mary Cowles died at the home of her daughter as Marickville, New Zealand, recently. She was a native of Inverness, Scotland, and was twenty-one years of age when she arrived in Sydney. She was twice married. Her second husband died just before the war. Thirteen of her grandsons served at the front, and one was killed. The eldest of her living children resides at Mackay, Queensland, and is seventy-four years of age. There are 97 descendants, the eldest of the great-grandchildren being twenty-one years of age.

Giving the Youngster a Home

This future captain of industry was completely bored by the business of the cameraman and decided to let his pretty nurse do all of the smiling.

He doesn't know yet, and probably never will, that he has cause to smile broadly with happiness. The Salvation Army gave him a daddy. Born out of wedlock in the divisional maternity home, at St. Paul, which serves Minnesota and South Dakota, a Salvation Army lassie, after four months of effort effected a marriage between father and mother. The family is now happy, in a new community, and the bouncing youngster has a name and a "fair start" in life. Three girls from Crow Wing county and 283 girls in this division were given care at this home last year.

Spread of Infection Diamed on Handshake

The question has often occurred to us: Why is a handshake? Isn't it only a relic of the past with which we might profitably dispense? Much has been written about the custom, its origin and its meanings; yet nothing to justify it from a sanitary standpoint.

That it can convey infection can be proved by laboratory tests. The warm, moist surface of the hand forms a very favorable resting place for bacteria while waiting for further transfers to our friends. Germs are no respecters of person or relationship. The most devoted of parents are physically just as capable of transferring infection to their children as anyone else.

It is a strange thing, but nearly universal, that people cough and sneeze into or upon their right hands—the ones with which they shake hands. Germs cling very readily to the skin of the hands and it requires much mechanical and chemical scrubbing and disinfection to remove them; yet, so subtle little things that they are, they are even ready to transfer their affections from one hand to another, or from hand to lip or food. Under ordinary conditions the human hand is a culture bed of germs and liable at any time to have its millions of germs augmented, or transferred, as the occasion presents. If you want to realize the possibilities of the transfer of disease by the hand just watch any one for a day and see where he puts his hands, what he allows to touch and soil them and how democratic he is in passing his germs along to his friends and family.

That the custom of handshaking will ever go out of use may be doubted, but that it is a means of conveying disease is susceptible of scientific demonstration. Our only hope is that people realizing the danger will take every precaution against putting their hands where they may either acquire or transmit infection. The Chinese have a very commendable custom of shaking their own hands when meeting friends, a custom we might well adopt. We make a lot of fun of China, but often may profit by her ancient wisdom if we but would. At least, your own germs will stay at home if you shake your own hand.—Ohio Health News.

Surroundings of Race Always an Influence

Given one race of people spread over an area as large and varied as this hemisphere, only time is needed to produce a variety of modes of living. In the forests of the east of this country arose the misunderstood and chivalrous Iroquois—dwellers in the "Long House." To the west the prairies produced a somewhat lower nomadic type. In the southern swamps the Seminoles led another kind of life. In the deserts of the Southwest life was harder, and there we find first the cliff dwellers and later the Hopi.

The history of civilization as a whole shows that one particular kind of locale has always been particularly favorable to the development of civilizations—a tropical or semi-tropical aridity with possibilities of not too difficult irrigation. Egypt was that way, and Mesopotamia. Also was probably the equally ancient kingdom of Elam. These were the places where civilization in a real sense first developed, and the same general sort of conditions led to the development of civilization in Mexico and in Peru.—John Murray Reynolds in Adventure Magazine.

Hard to Trace Origin of "Auld Lang Syne"

The origin of "Auld Lang Syne," invariably sung as the New Year comes in wherever two or three Britons are gathered together, is rather obscure. If Robert Burns can be trusted, and the song really did belong to the "folk" of Scotland, Burns' own account of the matter in a letter of 1795, was "One song more and I have done—"Auld Lang Syne."

"The air is but mediocre, but the old song—which has never been in print nor even in MS, until I took it down from an old man's singing, is enough to recommend any air." According to one Scottish authority, however, the beautiful air to which the song is now invariably sung is not the original one which Burns pronounced to be mediocre, but one adopted from an old lowland melody.

This was entitled, "I Fee'd a Law at Michaelmas," and in Gay's collections of reels it appears as "Sir Alexander Don's Strathspey." As to the words, adds our authority, the probability is that verses two and three—with their note of more tender sensibility—were added by the poet to the older set.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WHAT DOES LIFE MEAN?

IN an editorial in "Public Affairs", of which Ira Nelson Morris is editor and publisher, Mr. Morris takes up the philosophic question, "What Does Life Mean?"

He draws his conclusions. In his premise he lays stress on conditions following as a sort of backwash after the World War. He claims the present is a time of searching, of the breaking-up of established institutions and practices, of a revolution in thought and feeling.

America has enjoyed exceptional material prosperity since the World War. Our standards of living have advanced amazingly, continues Mr. Morris. "This mechanical age has given to almost every family advantages that could not have been had at all fifty years ago.

"The radio, the cinema, the cheap transportation afforded by the automobile, give even the children a cosmopolitan attitude toward the world at large; mass production and scientific methods, although they had led to perhaps too great a degree of standardization, have, nevertheless, made available to us all manner of material comforts.

"Yet people are restless and dissatisfied, and they do not know why that is so. What do they seek in life? What is life for, anyhow? They are trying to find out, and they are not altogether successful. The very fact that they have automobiles, radios, good clothes, better homes than ever before, only serves to emphasize the need of—what? Something, certainly, but it is not always easy to define.

"A mid-western educator has announced his creed as to what really matters in life." We have condensed it as follows:

"First, good health is necessary.

"Second, he tells us, congenial work is important.

"Third, our friend says, self-discipline is important. That comes down to us from Biblical times—even then it was recognized that he who conquers himself is greater than he who taketh a city.

"Fourth, human companionship. Marriage and friendship—and here, above all else, there should be no mercenary considerations.

"Fifth, 'reasonable leisure'.

"Sixth, 'religion'. That does not necessarily mean orthodoxy, or even religion in the general accepted sense. It means primarily that we must have something by which to guide our lives—religion if we hold to some faith, a philosophy if we cannot accept a ready-made faith but must make one for ourselves."

MAKING NO PROVISION FOR THE FUTURE

THE Bee Hive, official magazine of the Knights of the Macabees, edited by our old friend, Ed. L. Young, voices the need of making provision for the future, using this forceful language: "What do you think of the man who makes no provision for the future of his business? Who allows nothing for depreciation? Who creates no sinking fund against bonds to become due? Who fails to consider the replacement of old machinery by new and improved patterns? Who carries no insurance on his plant?"

"This individual in connection with his family, is in just the same position. His life and health are its business capital. These of necessity depreciate as the years roll on. Not infrequently his services are replaced by younger and more vigorous persons. This is equivalent to the replacement of old machinery by new and improved patterns.

"If no provision is made for such contingencies the results are comparable to the man who is short-sighted in business. The credit of such a man is limited in the business world. He is regarded as one who does not appreciate his responsibilities and the logical trend of business operation. Confidence in him becomes a steadily diminishing factor.

"The income of a man establishes his financial value to his own family. His life is more uncertain than any commercial plant. He gropes along carelessly and allows those dependent upon him to reap the reward of his own neglect and improvidence.

"Is it not manifestly the duty of every one to consider this subject in a commercial as well as in a sentimental way? These are questions vitally interwoven with general economic conditions."

SUGGESTS VACATION ON FARM

THE Milaca Times suggests President Coolidge might spend his summer vacation on a forty acre farm and find out what he could do with it. Coolidge knows all about farming under hard conditions, being Vermont born, and from his experience came thrift that has saved the country hundreds of millions of dollars.

Most Western farmers would think it impossible to get a living on the average Vermont farm, yet from these New England rocky acres have come wonderfully fine men and women, successful leaders all over the nation. Give Cal a forty acre farm and he not only would get a comfortable living on it, but would not spend his time asking impossible help from congress.—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

SAMPLE STORE DISCONTINUED

A LARGE mail order house will discontinue its merchandise exhibit in Little Falls August 1, it was announced by company officials. The lease on the building occupied will expire at the same time. The store was opened last October.

This merchandise exhibit was planned to have people examine the mail order house goods and leave their orders at the station, for transmission to the headquarters of the company. Evidently it has not been the success it was first anticipated, resulting in its discontinuance.

Cora's Cases 'in Storage

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

CORA was in more or less of a quandary as to what was the best way of getting rid of the large cases that were accumulating in her small storage room. Once in a while she wished there were a man about the place.

She had watched boys, with their funny little homemade carts, collecting and splitting up boxes, left on the sidewalks.

"I suppose they make them into kindling," Cora mused and decided she had better haul one of these youngsters and offer him her cases. They were of a fairly decent thickness and no doubt the boys would be glad to cart them away.

Lamp shades, telephone covers, shoe boxes, cushions and things of that sort comprised the stock in trade of Cora's little shop.

"How much can I have them for, miss," asked the lad and Cora noted that he had removed his cap upon coming into the shop.

"Goodness, child, I don't want anything for them. You're doing me a good turn in taking them."

"My brother always gives me a quarter and says I must offer to pay for any especially good boxes I find."

"And what do you use the wood for?" asked Cora.

"My brother has a hobby for making things," announced the small boy proudly, "and he sells a lot of them and gives me the money. I have thirty-seven dollars in the bank now."

"Oh," exclaimed Cora vastly interested. "What 'things' does your brother make?"

"Candlesticks, boxes with birds on them, garden flower poles and even little tables and chairs—all from the wood I get for him. We work evenings after my lessons and—well—Tom's the finest brother in the world."

Cora was sure that she had never met anyone so delightfully naive as this small boy whose brother made "things."

"Tom and I live together and he gets all my meals 'cause he doesn't want me to eat just any old thing. We have a flat."

"I should just love to meet your brother," said Cora, and added swiftly, "perhaps he will let me see some of his wooden things before he sells them elsewhere. Do you think he would?"

"Sure he would," said Barry with much authority for so small a person. "And he'll make some pretty swell boxes out of this fine wood and some peachy bookshelves."

"I can see your bank account being a swell affair, too," laughed Cora and the boy joined in. From that moment they were fast friends and Barry promised to bring his big brother round and also to call for more cases in a day or two.

Cora watched him as he trundled his well-made cart off through the traffic, laden as it was with two large crates.

"I wouldn't mind working for a boy like that either," she told herself and hoped that big brother's handiwork would be good enough to display among her own wares.

Cora realized when, a few nights later, she met Tom Brentwood that he had not much play time in his life. He was serious, responsible and had much of the charm of his small brother.

"Barry told me all about you," he said when Cora invited the two into the shop. "And I'm so keen to help this young man along with a start in life that I've come right along to see what chances there are for selling some of my stuff."

"Do let me see it," said Cora enthusiastically. "I have a fairly good sale for oddments for the house, Oh! These shoe boxes for the fire are lovely." She was quite astounded at the fine workmanship displayed in the slight collection he had brought. "These candlesticks, too, are quite unusual. You will let me sell them for Barry, won't you?" She turned toward the happy lad. "You see I want to help that bank account, too."

Tom colored slightly. "Barry's been telling secrets." He looked up frankly then at Cora. "I've been doing my best for him—you see we're quite alone in the world and it's a bit difficult to be father and mother. I've taken out a decent insurance policy for him in case he's left alone before he's old enough to look out for himself."

"Well," Cora said presently and her voice was softer than she knew. "I think I am going to help you and Barry a whole lot and I want to begin by asking you both to stay and keep me from being lonesome through my evening meal—besides, I'm rather proud of my cooking. You have a hobby for making 'things' out of old boxes and I have a hobby for making tasty food out of 'things'."

"Oh, Tom, do let's stay—I should love to." He gazed hopefully up at his big brother. "I'll wash up afterward while you two talk."

Tom laughed and looked at Cora. He knew then and there that Barry had found a mother while he had found—love.

Graveyard at Least

Had One Advantage

John James was an old farm hand in Cornwall. For many years he had labored faithfully and silently, with only an occasional day off, and a week's vacation each year after harvest. It was John James' peculiar custom to spend his odd hours off work in visiting old graveyards; and when his annual vacation came around, John James, dressed in his Sunday best, would spend each day of his week in a different graveyard.

On returning from one of his solemn rounds of visitation he was greeted by a busybody woman of the village.

"Well, John James, I see you've got back again."

John James nodded grimly.

"Where you been—same old places?"

John James nodded again—still more grimly.

"Well," exclaimed the busybody, "whatever you find entertainin' in graveyards I can't see. You're goin' to git there yourself soon enough. John James, and when you git there you're goin' to stay there a long time. Why under the sun then do you want to go there now?"

John James straightened himself in his black broadcloth suit and bowler hat and gave the woman a stony glare.

"I spend my spare time in graveyards," he said, "cause them be the only places where folks mind their own business."—W. D. McTear in Menorah Magazine.

Nowadays . . . you press a button

Or perhaps a switch, or some little gadget, and a lot of things happen around a home that lighten labor and banish trouble.

A whirling fan-brings a cooling breeze, and a little copper, dish-like affair throws out a sizzling blast that warms the room in no time.

Another button boils coffee, toasts bread and cooks waffles. Another does a better job than a broom. Another makes a happy laundress out of a dismal washwoman. Another one cools the ice-box. Another—but why go on?

Labor and time saving devices have come and are today within the reach of the humblest home.

And one of the chief reasons why they have come and why they are within the reach of the humblest home is the power of advertising.

Advertising has carried the news of these better ways of doing things to every home. It has created a desire to possess them, and countless thousands have purchased them, and live better because of them.

Reading advertising not only tells you about new, helpful mechanical devices for the home, but it is an unfailing guide to reliable products.

"This individual in connection with his family, is in just the same position. His life and health are its business capital. These of necessity depreciate as the years roll on. Not infrequently his services are replaced by younger and more vigorous persons. This is equivalent to the replacement of old machinery by new and improved patterns.

"If no provision is made for such contingencies the results are comparable to the man who is short-sighted in business. The credit of such a man is limited in the business world. He is regarded as one who does not appreciate his responsibilities and the logical trend of business operation. Confidence in him becomes a steadily diminishing factor.

"The income of a man establishes his financial value to his own family. His life is more uncertain than any commercial plant. He gropes along carelessly and allows those dependent upon him to reap the reward of his own neglect and improvidence.

"Is it not manifestly the duty of every one to consider this subject in a commercial as well as in a sentimental way? These are questions vitally interwoven with general economic conditions."

SUGGESTS VACATION ON FARM

THE Milaca Times suggests President Coolidge might spend his summer vacation on a forty acre farm and find out what he could do with it. Coolidge knows all about farming under hard conditions, being Vermont born, and from his experience came thrift that has saved the country hundreds of millions of dollars.

Most Western farmers would think it impossible to get a living on the average Vermont farm, yet from these New England rocky acres have come wonderfully fine men and women, successful leaders all over the nation. Give Cal a forty acre farm and he not only would get a comfortable living on it, but would not spend his time asking impossible help from congress.—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

SAMPLE STORE DISCONTINUED

A LARGE mail order house will discontinue its merchandise exhibit in Little Falls August 1, it was announced by company officials. The lease on the building occupied will expire at the same time. The store was opened last October.

This merchandise exhibit was planned to have people examine the mail order house goods and leave their orders at the station, for transmission to the headquarters of the company. Evidently it has not been the success it was first anticipated, resulting in its discontinuance.

HERBERT HOOVER, who is the personal representative of President Coolidge, in the area flooded by the lower Mississippi, states that he believes 300 lives have already been lost, 200,000 persons driven from their homes, and more than $200,000,000 worth of property lost. That is a fearful toll for the floods to take. Residents of Minnesota occasionally do have rather trying climatic conditions with which to contend, but this state is seldom visited by a disaster of any great magnitude.—Princeton Union.

Cora's Cases 'in Storage

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

CORA was in more or less of a quandary as to what was the best way of getting rid of the large cases that were accumulating in her small storage room. Once in a while she wished there were a man about the place.

She had watched boys, with their funny little homemade carts, collecting and splitting up boxes, left on the sidewalks.

"I suppose they make them into kindling," Cora mused and decided she had better haul one of these youngsters and offer him her cases. They were of a fairly decent thickness and no doubt the boys would be glad to cart them away.

Lamp shades, telephone covers, shoe boxes, cushions and things of that sort comprised the stock in trade of Cora's little shop.

"How much can I have them for, miss," asked the lad and Cora noted that he had removed his cap upon coming into the shop.

"Goodness, child, I don't want anything for them. You're doing me a good turn in taking them."

"My brother always gives me a quarter and says I must offer to pay for any especially good boxes I find."

"And what do you use the wood for?" asked Cora.

"My brother has a hobby for making things," announced the small boy proudly, "and he sells a lot of them and gives me the money. I have thirty-seven dollars in the bank now."

"Oh," exclaimed Cora vastly interested. "What 'things' does your brother make?"

"Candlesticks, boxes with birds on them, garden flower poles and even little tables and chairs—all from the wood I get for him. We work evenings after my lessons and—well—Tom's the finest brother in the world."

Cora was sure that she had never met anyone so delightfully naive as this small boy whose brother made "things."

"Tom and I live together and he gets all my meals 'cause he doesn't want me to eat just any old thing. We have a flat."

"I should just love to meet your brother," said Cora, and added swiftly, "perhaps he will let me see some of his wooden things before he sells them elsewhere. Do you think he would?"

"Sure he would," said Barry with much authority for so small a person. "And he'll make some pretty swell boxes out of this fine wood and some peachy bookshelves."

"I can see your bank account being a swell affair, too," laughed Cora and the boy joined in. From that moment they were fast friends and Barry promised to bring his big brother round and also to call for more cases in a day or two.

Cora watched him as he trundled his well-made cart off through the traffic, laden as it was with two large crates.

"I wouldn't mind working for a boy like that either," she told herself and hoped that big brother's handiwork would be good enough to display among her own wares.

Cora realized when, a few nights later, she met Tom Brentwood that he had not much play time in his life. He was serious, responsible and had much of the charm of his small brother.

"Barry told me all about you," he said when Cora invited the two into the shop. "And I'm so keen to help this young man along with a start in life that I've come right along to see what chances there are for selling some of my stuff."

"Do let me see it," said Cora enthusiastically. "I have a fairly good sale for oddments for the house. Oh! These shoe boxes for the fireless are lovely." She was quite astounded at the fine workmanship displayed in the slight collection he had brought. "These candlesticks, too, are quite unusual. You will let me sell them for Barry, won't you?" She turned toward the happy lad. "You see I want to help that bank account, too."

Tom colored slightly. "Barry's been telling secrets." He looked up frankly then at Cora. "I've been doing my best for him—you see we're quite alone in the world and it's a bit difficult to be father and mother. I've taken out a decent insurance policy for him in case he's left alone before he's old enough to look out for himself."

"Well," Cora said presently and her voice was softer than she knew. "I think I am going to help you and Barry a whole lot and I want to begin by asking you both to stay and keep me from being lonesome through my evening meal—besides, I'm rather proud of my cooking. You have a hobby for making 'things' out of old boxes and I have a hobby for making tasty food out of 'things'."

"Oh, Tom, do let's stay—I should love to," he gazed hopefully up at his big brother. "I'll wash up afterward while you two talk."

Tom laughed and looked at Cora. He knew then and there that Barry had found a mother while he had found—love.

Graveyard at Least

Had One Advantage

John James was an old farm hand in Cornwall. For many years he had labored faithfully and silently, with only an occasional day off, and a week's vacation each year after harvest. It was John James' peculiar custom to spend his odd hours off work in visiting old graveyards; and when his annual vacation came around, John James, dressed in his Sunday best, would spend each day of his week in a different graveyard.

On returning from one of his solemn rounds of visitation he was greeted by a busybody woman of the village.

"Well, John James, I see you've got back again."

John James nodded grimly.

"Where you been—same old places?"

John James nodded again—still more grimly.

"Well," exclaimed the busybody, "whatever you find entertaining in graveyards I can't see. You're going to get there yourself soon enough, John James, and when you get there you're going to stay there a long time. Why under the sun then do you want to go there now?"

John James straightened himself in his black broadcloth suit and bowler hat and gave the woman a stony glare.

"I spend my spare time in graveyards," he said, "because them be the only places where folks mind their own business."—W. D. Moffatt in Men-of-Morrow.

Ship's Official Record

Log-book is the book in which the master of a ship enters each day a brief but exact account of all the events of that day, the miles made by that day's run of the ship, an account of the weather, and the names of vessels sighted or spoken when names can be obtained. The log is the official record of the voyage.

Eddie Cantor and Jobyna Ralston in the Paramount Picture "Special Delivery"

A New Type of Comedian in a New Type of Comedy

With his second Paramount riot of fun, "Special Delivery," Eddie Cantor, the former roystering blackface of the far-famed Follies, appears Sunday at the Lyceum theatre.

In "Special Delivery," Cantor follows out his contention that the life of the man on the street, is after all the most interesting. He depicts the rookie postman whose blundering earnestness gets him into all sorts of difficulties.

Play Day at Chautauqua

The Elwyn Dramatic Company of six professional actors will present John Golden's famous Broadway success, "Thank-U" during the local Chautauqua season.

The Miracle Dog at the Lyceum Tonight

Did you ever see a police dog milk a cow? No? Well the chances are you never will unless you see Peter the Great do it in "King of the Pack," at the Lyceum theatre tonight.

This, however, is perhaps the least of many remarkable things that this gifted animal does in this picture, which is packed with thrilling action from start to finish.

Strawberry Cultivation

It is interesting to note that, although almost all fruits and vegetables must have their particular environments, the strawberry is an exception. It will grow in every state of the Union.

Nowadays . . . you press a button

Or perhaps a switch, or some little gadget, and a lot of things happen around a home that lighten labor and banish trouble.

A whirling fan-brings a cooling breeze, and a little copper, dish-like affair throws out a sizzling blast that warms the room in no time.

Another button boils coffee, toasts bread and cooks waffles. Another does a better job than a broom. Another makes a happy laundress out of a dismal washwoman. Another one cools the ice-box. Another—but why go on?

Labor and time saving devices have come and are today within the reach of the humblest home.

And one of the chief reasons why they have come and why they are within the reach of the humblest home is the power of advertising.

Advertising has carried the news of these better ways of doing things to every home. It has created a desire to possess them, and countless thousands have purchased them, and live better because of them.

Reading advertising not only tells you about new, helpful mechanical devices for the home, but it is an unfailing guide to reliable products.

Read advertising regularly. It points the way to better living

GETS TRIPLE, DOUBLE AND SINGLE FRIDAY

HELPS HIS TEAM, ATHLETICS,
DEFEAT SENATORS
8 TO 7

IN 6TH INNING WASHINGTON
HAS A 4 TO 1
LEAD

(By United Press)
Yesterday's hero—Ty Cobb, of the Philadelphia Athletics, who got three hits in five times at bat, a triple, double and a single, enabling his team to defeat the Washington Senators, 8 to 7.

Going into the sixth inning, the Senators had a 4 to 1 lead, but Philadelphia staged a vicious attack in their half of the inning, pounding Thurston, Marberry and Braxton for seven runs. It was the fifth straight victory for the Quakers and put them within half a game of first place, now occupied by the Yankees.

Making his first start in the big leagues, Jim Elliott, former Seattle pitching star, held the Philadelphia Phillies to four hits and Brooklyn won its third game of the season, 7 to 0. Only one Philadelphia player reached second. Beside pitching the air-tight game, Elliott hit a double in the first Brooklyn run across the plate. Johnny Butler, Dodger shortstop, made four hits in four times at bat.

Even though the New York Giants were charged with six errors, the Boston Braves were unable to win, dropping a 10 to 3 decision to the National league leaders. Home runs by Terry, Tyson and Lindstrom aided the Giants in their victory. It was the fifth consecutive win for New York.

Garland Buckeye, husky southpaw of the Cleveland Indians, was pounded for ten hits in seven innings, and Detroit took the second straight game from Cleveland, 5 to 2. Levens, who relieved Buckeye, held the Tigers to one hit in the eighth and stopped the scoring.

Dutch Reuther and Babe Ruth of the Yankees, beat the Boston Red Sox 9 to 0. Reuther allowed but six hits, while Ruth pounded out his fourth home run of the year.

Other games scheduled were postponed on account of rain.

The American association is twenty-five years old.

Harvard and Yale rowing crews have met each other for the last 70 years.

Crossed bats in front of the bench is considered the worst of all fumbles by ball players.

Joe Stecher developed his wonderful scissors hold in wrestling by practicing on a bag of meal.

Billy Grimes is the holder of three pugilistic titles of Australia, feather, light and welterweight.

Nashville has sent Outfielder Howard Camp to the Charlotte club of the South Atlantic league.

Al Watt of the Reading (Pa.) club will take up the management of the Richmond club this season.

"Gavvy" Cravath, former Phillies' manager and star, now is a justice of the peace at Laguna Beach, Calif.

Hockey was first introduced in the United States in 1896 by Frederick J. Goodrich, a sophomore at Harvard.

Harry Salte, former Springfield (Mass.) high school pitcher, has been signed by Albany of the Eastern league.

All five of the Espinosa brothers play golf and Al and Abe, two of them, can hold their own in any company.

Robert A. Gardner of Chicago is a racquet champion as well as the holder of two golf titles and a pole vault record.

Jack Dunn of the ex-champion Baltimore team of the International league has 29 pitchers among his players this season.

Freddy McGuire, second baseman, has been purchased by the Toledo American association club from the New York Giants.

Pitcher Bill Gould, who was with Waco of the Texas league last summer, has been signed by Nashville of the Southern league.

HOME TOWN FANS HAVE A FIELD DAY FULL OF JOY

ST. PAUL DEFEATS LOUISVILLE
COLONELS, 3 TO 4, IN 17
INNING GAME

St. Paul, April 30.—(UP)—Baseball fans who went to Lexington baseball park to greet the Saints in the opening game of the season Friday, had a field day.

They saw St. Paul defeat Louisville, 4 to 3, in a spectacular 17 inning game filled with brilliant fighting spirit. To the great delight of more than 7,000 fans the Saints went into first place in the American Association standings, emerging from a tie with Minneapolis.

Following opening day ceremonies in which city officials staged a comic scrub game that would create the envy of the famous baseball clowns, the new players were introduced and then the Saints and Colonels settled down to their long siege.

Paul Zahniser, St. Paul pitcher and former major league star, and Nick Callop, Louisville ace, pitched on even terms during the regular nine innings. Huck Betts relieved Zahniser and in the 17th inning ended the game by crashing a drive that sent Bruno Haas, outfielder, home for the winning run.

Minneapolis, April 30.—Indianapolis put a crimp in the plans of Miller fans for a perfect opening baseball game but there was consolation in a presentation by the players of a pitchers' duel.

Gorham Leverette, Indian hurler, allowed but three hits while his mates garnered six off Leo Moon's offerings and the Minneapolis team was forced to accept a 3 to 1 defeat in their first home game.

Mayor George E. Leach of Minneapolis and Major John L. Duval of Indianapolis exchanged greetings in the opening day ceremonies and presentation of Miller players.

Kansas City, Mo., April 30.—Bunching hits in the first inning, Kansas City scored 4 runs which proved sufficient to beat Columbus, 4 to 2.

Gov. Frank C. Finerson of Wyoming has signed the bill legalizing 15-round boxing in the state and providing for the appointment of a boxing commissioner.

Billy de Foe, veteran featherweight boxer, who has engaged in over 150 bouts during his career of 13 years, is still fighting regularly and a favorite with the fans.

Whippet racing, recently introduced in England, has met with great enthusiasm. Manchester being the first to erect a race track similar to those of the United States.

The record for a long-distance swim is held by Pedro Candelio, the Argentine amateur, who swam from Rosario to Santa Fe, Argentina, a distance of 75 miles, in 35 hours 1 minute.

Despite the fact that golf experts rate her as one of the best female players in the game, Miss Louise Branch of Richmond, Va., has never participated in any golf tournament.

WINS THE 100 YARD DASH AT PHILADELPHIA

SHOWS HEELS TO HANK RUSSELL AND ROLAND LOCKE

WINS WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP
ON A MUDDY TRACK

Franklin Field, Philadelphia, April 30.—(UP)—Jackson V. Scholz of the New York Athletic club won the world's championship 100-yard dash at the Pennsylvania relay games this afternoon by a matter of inches from Hank Russell, of Cornell, and Roland Locke, the famed sprinter from Nebraska.

Scholz pulled up after one of his customary slow starts, and breasted the tape six inches ahead of Russell, with Locke trailing by half a stride. The race was run over a track which was ankle deep with mud and water, but Scholz' time was 10 1-16 seconds, remarkable under the circumstances.

LOCKE DEFEATS
SCHOLZ IN 220 YARDS

Franklin Field, Philadelphia, April 30.—Roland Locke, holder of the world's record for the 220-yard dash, defeated Jackson V. Scholz of the New York A. C., Olympic champion, and Henry Russell, interscholastic title holder, in a special 220-yard world championship event which was one of the features of the Penn relays this afternoon.

A slow start cost Scholz the victory.

The Nebraskan got away to a lightning fast start and just lasted to win in 21 3-5 seconds. His world's record is 20 5-10 seconds, but fast time was impossible under the weather conditions.

It was Locke's first appearance in the east and he made up for an earlier defeat in the 100-yard dash by beating the two best men who could be found to test his phenomenal speed.

Bernie Frieberg of the Philadelphia Nationals won the title of strike-out king in the league in 1926. He fanned 77 times in 111 games.

Fred A. Conner skipped the rope 3,000 times in succession without a miss or stop in 11 minutes 20 seconds at Oil City, Pa., in 1906.

The world's record for the javelin throw by women is 108 feet 8 inches. The mark is held by Miss Pauline Haeup of Paterson, N. J.

Marvex, the race horse that won the Grand National race in England, the French derby and the French Grand Prix, has arrived in this country from London.

A Wisconsin boy, twelve years old, has passed the entrance examinations for the state university, but is believed to be a bit light for the backfield.

John McGraw, while still a member of the famous Baltimore Orioles, once fouled off 11 balls while facing Cy Young and finally received the free pass he was after.

J. A. House of Yale swam 150 yards backstroke in 1 minute 43 3-5 seconds, lowering his own intercollegiate record and tying the world record held by Walter Lauffer.

Football will need five more timers and a bookkeeper to enforce a rule compelling a two-second stop on shift plays, Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, told Northwestern alumni.

TRACK, WEATHER IDEAL AT DRAKE RELAY GAMES

7 RECORDS SHATTERED IN RUNNING YESTERDAY'S PRELIMINARIES

TWO OF THESE WERE OF MAJOR IMPORTANCE IN THE SPORT WORLD

Des Moines, Ia., April 30.—(UP)—Track and weather conditions were ideal today for the final events of the eighteenth annual Drake relay games and several more records were expected to be broken.

Seven records were shattered in the running of yesterday's preliminaries. Two were of major importance.

The quarter-mile relay record fell when the University of Kansas, during their trial heat, negotiated the distance in 41.8 seconds. The old record, 42.5 seconds, was set by the Jayhawkers in 1925. Regardless of whether they win the final event today, the record will stand, officials of the meet announced.

The other record to fall was the Iowa state medley relay mark, when Iowa State clipped 31 seconds from the old record of 8:40 flat, set by Illinois in 1925. The new time is 8:08 2-10.

Other records to fall yesterday were: Drake relay college medley, by Haskell Indians. New time, 7:43 1-10 old time, 7:43 9-10, set by Butler in 1925.

Iowa intercollegiate half mile, by Morningside college. New time, 1:32 9-10; old time, 1:33 4-10, set by Iowa Teachers' college.

One mile Iowa intercollegiate relay, by Penn college of Oskaloosa, Ia. New time, 3:29 5-10; old time, 3:33 by Buena Vista.

440-yard team, by Kansas University. New time, 4:11 1-10; old time, 4:25 1-10, set by Kansas in 1925.

One mile high school class B relay, by Carroll, Iowa. New time, 3:34 1-10; old time, 3:38 1-10.

15 extra hours on the NASH motor to be certain it is right

The illustration shows two Nash Advanced Six engines hooked together in the great Nash testing room.

One of these motors is driving the other, to limber it up. After a few hours of this, the motor now being driven will limber up another.

Then, after 8 to 10 hours on its own power, it will be taken apart. Bearings, connecting rods and pistons carefully inspected. Valves ground and resealed.

Next, the trained care of an engine expert will listen to the operation of this motor. When he is sure it is absolutely right, it will be mounted on its chassis. Then another rigid examination, in the car, out on the road. 15 extra hours in all are consumed before the motors shown above are ready for their owners.

How easily Nash could save this time and expense. You would never be able to see the difference.

But every Nash owner knows there is a difference!

There are extra hours of extra care in every Nash, to lift it above the level of the average car—to be certain Nash performance leads the world!

SEEKING TO SAVE NEW ORLEANS FROM RUIN

and Atchafalaya rivers continued to rise and leave their courses.

125 FEET OF LEVEE BREAKS AT SOUTH BEND

Little Rock, Ark., April 30.—Break of 125 feet in the river levee at South Bend, Ark., today was expected to inundate 27 small towns in seven counties.

The break was reported by Maj. Henry Fredeman of the Arkansas national guard who declared the new flood would drive out 60,000 persons. Towns in the path of the break include Dumas, McGehee and Dermott.

New Orleans, La., April 30.—With water pouring through the Mississippi river levee, broken by dynamite charges 14 miles south of here, and with the river gauge holding at 20.8 feet, New Orleans breathed easier today.

The river rushing through the break near Poydras can be heard for two miles and has covered St. Bernard Parish with from 8 to 10 feet of water for a distance of nine miles and is rapidly rising.

Engineers believe the break will definitely save New Orleans from its greatest flood threat in history, but it was made only after sacrificing the homes of three thousand people and covering rich farm and trapping lands with water which had been straining the levees to the northward.

Military authorities ordered the drawbridge at Violet, 10 miles south of here, closed, shutting off all traffic into the danger area.

For a distance of approximately 500 feet the Mississippi is pouring its flood waters through the broken levee and across St. Bernard Parish toward the Gulf of Mexico.

Business in the city has resumed normal but the real test of New Orleans levees will not occur for some days. The crest of the flood is reported as 500 miles up the river and travelling at a rate of 50 miles a day.

Additional breaks in levees on the west side between Natchez and the mouth of Red river are expected to further relieve embankments here from the strain.

In many places the water is within a few feet of the top of levees and such a rise as promised by reports from the north unless relieved by breaks and crevasses created near Poydras, would send the flood over the embankments.

5 MORE VICTIMS OF THE FLOODS

Little Rock, Ark., April 30.—Five more victims of the Mississippi flood lay dead in the morgues here today.

Three negroes drowned near England yesterday when their boat overturned in a swift current. Two white persons who were drowned during the rise at Forrest City were found.

Vicksburg, Miss., April 30.—Dumping 150 mattresses and twice as many sandbags into the gaping hole under the concrete sea wall, city engineers today temporarily halted the rise of water inside Vicksburg's flood rampart.

Shortly after noon, Major J. W. Hossley told the United Press he hoped further rises had been halted. The water had climbed at the rate of a foot an hour during the early morning.

The only part of Vicksburg threatened is a stretch two miles long and several hundred yards wide under the bluff on which the city proper is located.

This stretch is threaded with railroad tracks and lined with warehouses.

FLOOD RELIEF STEAMER AT RICHEY

Vicksburg, Miss., April 29.—The flood relief steamer Vicksburg arrived at Richey, Miss., on the Sunflower river, just in time to save 150 persons jammed into the one building above water, according to M. V. Robinson, Vicksburg, just returned from relief work on the Delta.

"Our steamer reached Richey in the nick of time," Robinson said. "Except for the railroad station the entire town was under water."

"One hundred and fifty persons were jammed into the tiny structure and as the water seeped through the floor and the building swayed in the current they knelt and prayed."

"While they were praying, an old negro mammy told me, the Vicksburg whistled down the Sunflower river and with one accord they all shouted, 'The Lord has saved us!'"

Easy to Be Punctual in Washington's Time

The first President was a great believer in punctuality. "Never ask" he told his servants, "whether my guests have arrived, but whether the hour has arrived."

Washington was always on time and believed every one else should be. If he had guests for dinner no matter how important they might be, he always began eating at the appointed hour.

It would be interesting to note how many times Mr. Washington would dine alone if he were living today. He would learn a great deal about traffic jams, delayed trains, street car blockades and the thousand and one other alibis made use of by late comers.

Punctuality is a great thing if you don't happen to live in a crowded city.—Thrift Magazine.

Not to Be Despised

It was "report card day" and mother was looking them over. Marjory, an eighth-grader, brought home a wonderful record, and Evelyn, from the sixth grade carried home a card that made mother's eyes shine with pride. But, alas, eight-year-old Junior was the cause of great despair. At luncheon mother discussed it with father. In the presence of the children. At last she said:

"I just don't see why Junior can't make good grades like the girls do." Junior looked up from his spinach, which he was dutifully devouring. "Well," he said, in his own defense, "I may not get as good grades as my sisters do, but let me tell you this: I'm the second best fighter in the whole school!"

"Jokers" in Old Laws

Some old laws contain unintentional jokers. A Massachusetts statute leaves it up to the authorities to determine if a citizen has driven on a public highway "laid out under authority of the law recklessly or under the influence of liquor." Kansas railroad traffic could be held up indefinitely, says Pathfinder Magazine, if that state enforced a law that stipulates that "when two trains approach each other at a crossing they shall both come to a full stop and neither shall start until the other is gone." One state proposed to drive all Chinese out of the state by adopting an amendment providing that "hereafter all Chinamen shall be deemed to be girls under eighteen years of age."

Famous Chess Tourneys

The first of the great international chess tournaments ever held in America was that staged in New York in 1889, when Michael Tschigorin of Russia divided the first and second prizes with Max Weiss of Vienna after a grueling contest. Not until 15 years later was another masters' tournament held in the United States. This was the congress held at Cambridge Springs, Pa., in 1904, in which Frank J. Marshall, the American expert, carried off the first prize of $1,000 without the loss of a single game in a total of 15 played.

Proper

Ten-year-old Jean came in hot and tired one June day and said: "Oh, mother, let me have a bath, I'm all hot and sweaty."

"Don't say sweaty, Jean. I've been perspiring" is proper.

After a long pause, Jean asked, thoughtfully: "Mother, do sweat people say cry and perspire people say weep?"

Red Cross Needs $5,000,000 For Flood Victims; Mobilizes All Relief Resources at Memphis

1. "Main Street" in one of the 32 refugee camps established by the Red Cross is shown in the upper photo. In the foreground two helpless victims of the merciless waters are shown inspecting their new quarters.

2. A group of refugees receiving food from a Red Cross canteen worker. Mass feeding such as this has been necessary in some camps but is being avoided wherever possible.

3. Acting Chairman James L. Fieser of the Red Cross who is assisting the administration of relief from base headquarters at Memphis, Tennessee.

WITH more than 100,000 persons already homeless and the mighty Mississippi threatening each instant to tear its way through additional towns in the one-time happy valley, the American Red Cross finds itself face to face with probably the greatest relief problem of the past century.

The President of the United States has actively participated in mobilizing governmental agencies and resources to assist the Red Cross in its relief program. On April 22, following the custom in previous disasters of the first magnitude, he issued a proclamation calling upon the people to subscribe to the Red Cross relief fund. This he did in his capacity as President of the United States and President also of the Red Cross. He followed this action with the appointment of a special committee from his Cabinet, comprising Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War; Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy; Herbert C. Hoover,

Secretary of Commerce, and Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, to work in conjunction with Red Cross officials. At the first meeting of this committee with the Red Cross acting chairman, James L. Fieser, and others, it was decided that a minimum of $5,000,000 will be needed to take care of the flood sufferers.

The disaster was reported to exceed in proportions the Florida hurricane of last fall, when the roster of homeless was $0,000. It differs in that there is huge total of dead and wounded. In this case, however, there is no definitely cut out problem as in Florida, for the elements have not finished their havoc. Whether the waters will start to recede within a few weeks or whether they will continue to rise indefinitely, sweeping additional houses down to the sea and engulfing additional acres of farmlands and villages, cannot be foreseen.

Henry M. Baker, national director of disaster relief for the Red

Cross, has been made dictator of the Mississippi Valley with the powers of a general in war. Headquarters of the relief corps is at Memphis, Tenn., where lies an officers of the Army, Navy, Commerce Department, Coast Guard, Public Health Service and Veterans' Bureau are working in conjunction with Mr. Fieser, Secretary Hoover, Major General Jadwin, chief of army engineers, and Dr. William R. Redden, medical advisor for the Red Cross in Memphis, to assist in the gigantic program.

Relief funds are beginning to come in to National Red Cross headquarters in Washington and to chapter headquarters in every state and all that it is humanly possible to do is being done for the refugees. Quotas have been assigned to the chapters and 3,000 of these are collecting funds. Prior to leaving for Memphis, Chairman Rieser expressed his belief that the American people will respond generously to the appeal for the flood sufferers.

and Atchafalaya rivers continued to rise and leave their courses.

125 FEET OF LEVEE BREAKS AT SOUTH BEND

Little Rock, Ark., April 30.—Break of 125 feet in the river levee at South Bend, Ark., today was expected to inundate 27 small towns in seven counties.

The break was reported by Maj. Henry Fredeman of the Arkansas national guard who declared the new flood would drive out 60,000 persons.

Towns in the path of the break include Dumas, McGee and Dermott.

New Orleans, La., April 30.—With water pouring through the Mississippi river levee, broken by dynamite charges 14 miles south of here, and with the river gauge holding at 20.8 feet, New Orleans breathed easier today.

The river rushing through the break near Poydras can be heard for two miles and has covered St. Bernard Parish with from 8 to 10 feet of water for a distance of nine miles and is rapidly rising.

Engineers believe the break will definitely save New Orleans from its greatest flood threat in history, but it was made only after sacrificing the homes of three thousand people and covering rich farm and trapping lands with water which had been straining the levees to the northward.

Military authorities ordered the drawbridge at Violet, 10 miles south of here, closed, shutting off all traffic into the danger area.

For a distance of approximately 500 feet the Mississippi is pouring its flood waters through the broken levee and across St. Bernard Parish toward the Gulf of Mexico.

Business in the city has resumed normal but the real test of New Orleans levees will not occur for some days. The crest of the flood is reported as 500 miles up the river and travelling at a rate of 50 miles a day.

Additional breaks in levees on the west side between Natchez and the mouth of Red river are expected to further relieve embankments here from the strain.

In many places the water is within a few feet of the top of levees and such a rise as promised by reports from the north unless relieved by breaks and crevasses created near Poydras, would send the flood over the embankments.

5 MORE VICTIMS OF THE FLOODS

Little Rock, Ark., April 30.—Five more victims of the Mississippi flood lay dead in the morgues here today.

Three negroes drowned near Englewood yesterday when their boat overturned in a swift current. Two white persons who were drowned during the rise at Forrest City were found.

Vicksburg, Miss., April 30.—Dumping 150 mattresses and twice as many sandbags into the gaping hole under the concrete sea wall, city engineers today temporarily halted the rise of water inside Vicksburg's flood rampart.

Shortly after noon, Major J. W. Hossley told the United Press he hoped further rises had been halted. The water had climbed at the rate of a foot an hour during the early morning.

The only part of Vicksburg threatened is a stretch two miles long and several hundred yards wide under the bluff on which the city proper is located.

This stretch is threaded with railroad tracks and lined with warehouses.

FLOOD RELIEF

STEAMER AT RICHEY

Vicksburg, Miss., April 29.—The flood relief steamer Vicksburg arrived at Richey, Miss., on the Sunflower river, just in time to save 150 persons jammed into the one building above water, according to M. V. Robinson, Vicksburg, just returned from relief work on the Delta.

"Our steamer reached Richey in the nick of time," Robinson said. "Except for the railroad station the entire town was under water."

"One hundred and fifty persons were jammed into the tiny structure and as the water seeped through the floor and the building swayed in the current they knelt and prayed."

"While they were praying, an old negro mammy told me, the Vicksburg whistled down the Sunflower river and with one accord they all shouted, 'The Lord has saved us!'"

Easy to Be Punctual in Washington's Time

The first President was a great believer in punctuality. "Never ask" he told his servants, "whether my guests have arrived, but whether the hour has arrived."

Washington was always on time and believed every one else should be. If he had guests for dinner no matter how important they might be, he always began eating at the appointed hour.

It would be interesting to note how many times Mr. Washington would dine alone if he were living today. He would learn a great deal about traffic jams, delayed trains, street car blockades and the thousand and one other alibis made use of by late comers.

Punctuality is a great thing if you don't happen to live in a crowded city.—Thrifty Magazine.

Not to Be Despised

It was "report card day" and mother was looking them over. Marjory, an eighth-grader, brought home a wonderful record, and Evelyn, from the sixth grade carried home a card that made mother's eyes shine with pride. But, alas, eight-year-old Junior was the cause of great despair. At luncheon mother discussed it with father, in the presence of the children. At last she said:

"I just don't see why Junior can't make good grades like the girls do."

Junior looked up from his spinach, which he was dutifully devouring.

"Well," he said, in his own defense, "I may not get as good grades as my sisters do, but let me tell you this: I'm the second best fighter in the whole school!"

"Jokers" in Old Laws

Some old laws contain unintentional jokers. A Massachusetts statute leaves it up to the authorities to determine if a citizen has driven on a public highway "in full under authority of the law recklessly or under the influence of liquor." Kansas railroad traffic could be held up indefinitely, says Pathfinder Magazine, if that state enforced a law that stipulates that "when two trains approach each other at a crossing they shall both come to a full stop and neither shall start until the other is gone." One state proposed to drive all Chinese out of the state by adopting an amendment providing that "hereafter all Chinamen shall be deemed to be girls under eighteen years of age."

Famous Chess Tournaments

The first of the great international chess tournaments ever held in America was that staged in New York in 1889, when Michael Tschigorin of Russia divided the first and second prizes with Max Weiss of Vienna after a grueling contest. Not until 15 years later was another masters' tournament held in the United States. This was the congress held at Cambridge Springs, Pa., in 1904, in which Frank J. Marshall, the American expert, carried off the first prize of $1,000 without the loss of a single game in a total of 15 played.

Proper

Ten-year-old Jean came in hot and tired one June day and said: "Oh, mother, let me have a bath, I'm all hot and sweaty."

"Don't say sweaty, Jean. I've been perspiring is proper."

After a long pause, Jean asked, thoughtfully: "Mother, do sweat people say cry and perspire people say weep?"

Red Cross Needs $5,000,000 For Flood Victims; Mobilizes All Relief Resources at Memphis

1. "Main Street" in one of the 32 refugee camps established by the Red Cross is shown in the upper photo. In the foreground two helpless victims of the merciless waters are shown inspecting their new quarters.

2. A group of refugees receiving food from a Red Cross canteen worker. Mass feeding such as this has been necessary in some camps but is being avoided wherever possible.

3. Acting Chairman James L. Fieser of the Red Cross who is assisting the administration of relief from base headquarters at Memphis, Tennessee.

WITH more than 100,000 persons already homeless and the mighty Mississippi threatening each instant to tear its way through additional towns in the one-time happy valley, the American Red Cross finds itself face to face with probably the greatest relief problem of the past century.

The President of the United States has actively participated in mobilizing governmental agencies and resources to assist the Red Cross in its relief program. On April 22, following the custom in previous disasters of the first magnitude, he issued a proclamation calling upon the people to subscribe to the Red Cross relief fund. This he did in his capacity as President of the United States and President also of the Red Cross. He followed this action with the appointment of a special committee from his Cabinet, comprising Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War; Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy; Herbert C. Hoover,

Secretary of Commerce, and Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, to work in conjunction with Red Cross officials. At the first meeting of this committee with the Red Cross acting chairman, James L. Fieser, and others, it was decided that a minimum of $5,000,000 will be needed to take care of the flood sufferers.

The disaster was reported to exceed in proportions the Florida hurricane of last fall, when the roster of homeless was 80,000. It differs in that there is huge total of dead and wounded. In this case, however, there is no definitely cut out problem as in Florida, for the elements have not finished their havoc. Whether the waters will start to recede within a few weeks or whether they will continue to rise indefinitely, sweeping additional houses down to the sea and engulfing additional acres of farmlands and villages, cannot be foreseen.

Henry M. Baker, national director of disaster relief for the Red

Cross, has been made dictator of the Mississippi Valley with the powers of a general in war. Headquarters of the relief corps is at Memphis, Tenn., where lies an officers of the Army, Navy, Commerce Department, Coast Guard, Public Health Service and Veterans' Bureau are working in conjunction with Mr. Fieser, Secretary Hoover, Major General Jadwin, chief of army engineers, and Dr. William R. Redden, medical advisor for the Red Cross in Memphis, to assist in the gigantic program.

Relief funds are beginning to come in to National Red Cross headquarters in Washington and to chapter headquarters in every state and all that it is humanly possible to do is being done for the refugees. Quotas have been assigned to the chapters and 3,000 of these are collecting funds. Prior to leaving for Memphis, Chairman Fieser expressed his belief that the American people will respond generously to the appeal for the flood sufferers.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL BROADENS

Annual Canvass for Funds for County
Work Opens
Monday

ASSOCIATE CHAIRMEN

Wm. V. Turcotte, Geo. W. Sweet, D. H. Fullerton, Harold Nelson, R. E. Wyett, to Assist B. T. Heath

The largest volunteer campaign committee ever assembled for a Salvation Army campaign in Brainerd will begin the annual canvass for funds, with which to carry on the work of relief and welfare for another year, Monday. The campaign will conduct the canvass next week, day.

William V. Turcotte, George W. Sweet, D. H. Fullerton, Harold Nelson, R. E. Wyett, and Basil T. Heath have been named as associate chairmen in charge of downtown districts. They are recruiting workers in the various blocks and buildings who will conduct the canvass next week, according to announcement from campaign headquarters.

The county-wide canvass will begin Monday. Friends of the Army have volunteered to assist in raising the "heart fund" in every village in Crow Wing county, according to Basil T. Heath, general campaign chairman.

More than fifty women will conduct the solicitation in Brainerd residential district, it was announced.

Four troops of Boy Scouts of America are doing a "good turn" for the Salvation Army today in distributing pamphlets containing the annual report of the county work and an explanation of the work being carried on by the local organization. The troops which are assisting in the distribution are: Troop No. 1, J. M. Lucas, Scoutmaster; Troop No. 3, James Templeton, Scoutmaster; Troop No. 4, L. M. Hanson, Scoutmaster, and Troop No. 5, E. J. Egan, Scoutmaster.

Basil T. Heath, county chairman, explained that the Salvation Army raises its funds in each community for the particular work of that community. "The Army budget of $2,700 is the minimum amount needed for the work of the Army in Crow Wing county," declared Mr. Heath. The budget for local corps work is $1,800. "This includes officers' salaries which amount to less than $600 per year. The remaining indebtedness on the local Army barracks is $500 and the organization hope to pay this note this year."

"The only money which is not used locally is $300 which goes to the St. Paul Rescue Home of the Army to partially pay expense of caring for unmarried mothers and babies who go to this home each year from Crow Wing county. Three cases from this county were given care this year."

"Not one cent is used outside of Minnesota and only the payment to the Rescue Home is used outside of the county. Eighteen major activities are carried on in the Army throughout the world, but no money is raised in Crow Wing county for these purposes. A telegram from Minneapolis headquarters of the Army this morning states that more than a hundred units of Salvation Army officers are working in co-operation with the American Red Cross in the flood regions of the Mississippi. This is only one of the many national activities of this organization."

2 Year Boy Shot

and Killed While

Playing with Brother

Ambridge, Pa., April 30.—(UP)—Two year old Arthur Foster was shot and killed today while at play with his brother Francis, 4, and a friend, Daniel Halsey, 7.

The grandmother of the Foster boys said she heard the shot, and on arrival at the bedroom found Arthur dead, with a .38 caliber revolver at his side. Both of the boys told police they had fired the fatal shot, but authorities believed Francis was not strong enough to pull the trigger and that Daniel did the accidental shooting.

The parents of the dead boy are now in Washington, D. C.

IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Unusual Cases, One Refusing Forest Fire Fighting Duty, Other Refusing to Send Child to School

Two cases were heard before Judge L. P. Koop in municipal court this morning.

Ed. W. Wise of Brainerd, charged with refusing to assist in fighting a forest fire in the town of Baxter after being summoned by District Forest Ranger E. H. Rhodes, pleaded guilty. He was fined $20, but sentence was suspended pending good behavior.

Isaac Sundquist of Crow Wing was arraigned on a charge of refusing to send a minor child to school. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail but Judge Koop suspended sentence on condition that the child, a fourteen-year old boy, be sent to school hereafter.

IMPROVEMENT LEAGUE MEETING

Northeast Brainerd Association to Gather Monday Evening at Lowell School

COMMITTEE REPORTS UP

Publicity and Social Welfare Committees Prepare a Surprise Number

The Northeast Brainerd Improvement League will hold a meeting next Monday evening, May 2, at the Lowell school. The regular meeting scheduled for last Tuesday evening, April 26, was postponed on account of sickness among the members.

Committee reports will be heard and other business matters will be brought before the meeting. It is expected that there will be considerable discussion of street conditions in the third ward. Steps will be taken to make arrangements for dragging the streets and taking out ruts on some of the side streets.

The publicity and social welfare committee is preparing a special surprise number for the occasion and it is hoped a number of past presidents will be present.

The League has been active in a number of civic improvements for its section of the city and residents of the third ward are urged to attend, bring up matters needing attention and take part in the work that is being done.

NATIONAL EGG WEEK STARTS NEXT MONDAY

St. Paul, April 30.—(UP)—National egg week starts Monday with many state organizations interested in the advancement of that form of food prepared to participate.

State colleges have planned programs and menus for the week with eggs the principal feature. A menu prepared by Miss Alice M. Child, assistant professor of home economics, university, reads more like an "egg diet" than a bill of fare for each day of next week.

More than 40 states are cooperating in observance of the annual affair under the direction of the National Poultry council.

WOLF HUNTING LAD MISSING

Curtis Gordon, 15, Near Emily Left Home Last Sunday Afternoon

PARTIES SEARCH FOR HIM

Lad Carried Revolver, Hunting Knife and Hunting Bag

According to reports, Curtis Gordon, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Gordon who live 12 miles north of Deerwood in the vicinity of Emily has been missing since Sunday afternoon when he left home, saying that he was going to hunt wolves. Searching parties who criss-crossed the Gordon neighborhood have failed to find any trace of him. He carried a revolver, hunting knife, and a hunting bag.

The family are now inclined to believe that he has run away although there was nothing in his demeanor when he left to indicate that was his intention. Inquiries are being made for him in the towns around Brainerd.

It was reported Thursday, that a boy answering his description had been seen at Cross Lake. The boy was with a man driving a bunch of horses through the village.

The missing boy is a brother of Mrs. Lee Mattson of Deerwood who with Mr. Mattson are aiding the parents in the search. The Gordon family at one time lived on the Swanstrom farm, southeast of Deerwood and moved to Emily about two years ago.

PARTIES SEARCH FOR HIM

Lad Carried Revolver, Hunting Knife and Hunting Bag

According to reports, Curtis Gordon, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Gordon who live 12 miles north of Deerwood in the vicinity of Emily has been missing since Sunday afternoon when he left home, saying that he was going to hunt wolves. Searching parties who crisscrossed the Gordon neighborhood have failed to find any trace of him. He carried a revolver, hunting knife, and a hunting bag.

The family are now inclined to believe that he has run away although there was nothing in his demeanor when he left to indicate that was his intention. Inquiries are being made for him in the towns around Brainerd.

It was reported Thursday, that a boy answering his description had been seen at Cross Lake. The boy was with a man driving a bunch of horses through the village.

The missing boy is a brother of Mrs. Lee Mattson of Deerwood who with Mr. Mattson are aiding the parents in the search. The Gordon family at one time lived on the Swannstrom farm, southeast of Deerwood and moved to Emily about two years ago.

THE STORY SO FAR

Deceived by her parents and hungry for someone to love her, little Amaryllis Minton runs away from her chauffeur in quest of happiness. She meets a boy in a garden, who plays the violin beautifully. His name is John Guido Forrester, his father is a painter, and his mother, now dead, was a famous singer. John Guido hopes to do with his violin what his mother did with her voice. He cannot understand why the pretty little girl should be lonely.

Still looking deep into his eyes, Amaryllis said: "Sure she could come if she wanted to. She could come tomorrow night if she would. She doesn't want to be bothered. She wants beautiful dresses and beautiful times, and big, fine men to take her places. I darsent to touch her, not for anything. I might wrinkle her dress, or muss her hair, or make a mark on her face. Just once, on my nose, is all she kissed me when she went away forever, and all she said was: 'Be a good girl.'"

Then Amaryllis stepped back and her little fists clenched tight and her chin lifted up. It was very quavery and the pink cheeks were twisting and the big eyes were getting very hard and bright as she said: "John Guido, how's anybody going to 'be a good girl' with nobody in 'all this world to love' em?"

And John Guido said: "God knows, little hungry heart! I don't!"

Then Amaryllis made the most attractive suggestion.

She said: "Maybe if you would take me to your house and keep me two or three days until they all get good and scared—if any one would get scared about me—maybe and all the vines ran sprawling over the ground or climbed trees or ran on top of the fence; and all the bulbs spread and grew in clusters and everything was wild and free. Instead of a big, locked bronze gate, an old wooden one hung on one hinge and it was just as wide open as it could get. Any one could run through and reach the meadow. Then at the far end of the garden there was a house.

The minute Amaryllis saw it she loved the house. It was not a big house at all. It was a low, flat house with a veranda running around it that needed loads of spindles in its railing. The steps needed straightening and everything needed paint. The bushes were wild as the garden, and the grass grew long and waved in the wind like hair. It was a quiet house, and a home-like house. You could see all of it without walking until you were tired.

Inside it was a wonderful house. There was one big room that smelled of pipes and tobacco, and there was a wide fireplace with heaps of wood beside it, and there was a big piano. The boy laid the violin on top of that. There were easy chairs and shelves full of books all around the walls. On one side of this room there was a door leading to another room that was nearly all glass. In it there was a world of the most wonderful books, and pictures and more pictures. Some of them stood up on easels, and some of them hung on the walls, and many of them stood on the floors. Lots of them that stood on the floor turned their faces to the walls. It was a wonderful room. One could never become tired of it. There were doors that opened out of it into the garden, and onto the back porch; and if one went down

Giant Arctic Bear

The polar bear is a large bear (Ursus or Thalarctos maritimus) inhabiting the Arctic regions of both the Old and the New world. It attains a length of about 9 feet and often weighs more than 1,000 pounds. It frequents the shores and ice floes and swims well, living largely on seals. It differs from other bears in its creamy white color, long neck, narrow skull and small molar teeth.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

By GENE BYRNES

TOOK ALL DELIGHT FROM TRIP ABROAD

Traveler Writes Feelingly of Passport Picture.

A real gentleman came in the other day (he is my friend forever now) and I have great confidence in his taste and asked why not more stuff about that trip abroad. "I read every word of it," he swore glibly, and I almost believed him. Those things "get to you" easier as you get older. The excuse I made for not doing more of it was the fear of boring an already too indulgent public.

But this perfect gentleman had hardly left the office when another man came in to ask about the trip abroad. He was going over in May. How about it? He began to talk about the passport and the passport picture. I haven't fully got over the shock of the latter yet. And it seems such a little thing, too—that passport picture.

The trouble with the passport picture is, or one of them, that the photographer gentleman isn't out to flatter you. He doesn't "touch up" any. You just sit there in the picture like a solemn or grinning Hindu idol, unregenerate, and in all your unadorned awfulness, unrelieved by shadow, without excuse and without hope in the world. Your skull bulges in the wrong places, your ears stand out and your bumps proclaim gluttony, licentiousness and avarice. Your expression is that of an unrecalled rooster when chased, startled and distraught.

I shall never forget it. I looked upon the passport picture after the shoot'up was over and a perceptible shudder ran through me. Only by superhuman fortitude did I show it to a friend of forty years' standing in the office and with the bitter cry: "This can't look like me!" But he was relentless.

"It's exactly the way you look!" I gazed at it for a long time and I finally said with something like a sigh: "Anyhow, God loves me."

And that is what you have to go through to get the unflattering passport picture and to get over it before embarking on the great deep. It has taken away much of my desire to go to Europe again, if that has to be done over again. And, I suppose, that must have been exactly the way I looked to the Europeans! They are certainly a polite race. Nobody said anything.

Of course, a man ought to forget himself; if he is out for a holiday, and just sit back and enjoy life. He should forget family, and friends, and early training, and the office, and business, and think of himself as a young millionaire poet and novelist tasting the nectar of life from the golden cup of the gods so freely held to his lips. And this I came very near doing. Once about a hundred and fifty miles from land, the remembrance of the passport picture somehow rolled off of my heart and buried itself fifty fathoms deep and I suffered a sea change into something new and strange, and began to take notice of a few of the companionable de voyage—mostly feminine.—A. J. R., in the Minneapolis Journal.

Ingenious Advertising

The city of Berlin is proud of the stage settings provided for performances of notable works at its civic opera and is turning them to advertising advantage. In one of the windows of the large city information bureau which the municipality maintains near Potsdamer platz some especially good sets are reproduced in miniature. The brilliantly illuminated tiny stages with diminutive reproductions of the settings all in place inevitably attract the eye of the passerby. Realism is added to the scene by a Lilliputian figure or two of characters from the opera being advertised.

Spanking Was Waived

"No, Olive," said her father, who was ill in bed, "you mustn't climb up and kiss me, I have a sore throat." The child looked disappointed. "You may wave me a kiss, that will do just as well," he added to comfort her. The little one's natural activity had to have an outlet and a minute or two later she was up on a chair trying to reach something on the mantel. "Get down off that chair," commanded her father. "You will fall and break something." Olive was not promptly obedient. "Get down or I'll spank you." Olive looked at him and remembering, said: "Wave your spank, daddy, that will do as well."—Boston Transcript.

Prune Industry's Growth

The prune industry was started in the eastern United States in 1854, but failed because the climatic conditions were not favorable for the production of the desired qualities. About 1803 the industry started in California and grew rapidly. In 1910 the annual output was 150,000,000 pounds, of which nearly half was exported. Before the industry grew in California, France was the chief producing nation of the world. Oregon, Washington and Idaho also grow good prunes, as do Serbia, Bosnia, Germany, Spain, Australia and South Africa.

Natural Refrigeration

The natural cold-storage facilities of Alaska have been used advantageously in handling reindeer meat. In areas adjoining the Arctic coast solid ice is reached within three or four feet of the surface and extends downward to great depths. During the winter of 1925 one chamber large enough to hold 100 carcasses was excavated in the underground ice. In the spring the carcasses thus stored were removed in excellent condition for shipping.

Recalls Seven Years' War

Torres Vedras is a small town in Portugal, 25 miles northeast of Lisbon, rendered famous by the double line of fortifications constructed by Wellington in 1810. These famous lines protected Lisbon, the capital of Portugal, and gave Wellington's army a sure refuge when hard pressed by the numerically superior forces led by Marshal Massena. When the proper time came, Wellington advanced from behind the lines of Torres Vedras, and drove the enemy out of the peninsula.

Open Windows From Top

Many housewives have not yet learned the great advantage in having kitchen windows open from the top. They should be so opened especially when the housewife is working there. This arrangement lets the hot, used air out and the cool, fresh draft on the worker. According to economic experts at Pullman, Wash., the temperature should be maintained somewhere between 60 and 68 degrees Fahrenheit and the air should be constantly changing. Lack of fresh air makes one tired very quickly.

From the famous photoplay, "The Magic Garden."

THE STORY SO FAR

Described by her parents and hungry for someone to love her, little Amaryllis Minton runs away from her chauffeur in quest of happiness. She meets a boy in a garden, who plays the violin beautifully. His name is John Guido Forrester. His father is a painter, and his mother, now dead, was a famous singer. John Guido hopes to do with his violin what his mother did with her voice. He cannot understand why the pretty little girl should be lonely.

Still looking deep into his eyes, Amaryllis said: "Sure she could come if she wanted to. She could come tomorrow night if she would. She doesn't want to be bothered. She wants beautiful dresses and beautiful times, and big, fine men to take her places. I darsent to touch her, not for anything. I might wrinkle her dress, or muss her hair, or make a mark on her face. Just once, on my nose, is all she kissed me when she went away forever, and all she said was: 'Be a good girl.'"

Then Amaryllis stepped back and her little fists clenched tight and her chin lifted up. It was very quivery and the pink cheeks were getting very hard and bright as she said: "John Guido, how's anybody going to be a good girl with nobody in all this world to love 'em?"

And John Guido said: "God knows, little hungry heart! I don't!"

Then Amaryllis made the most attractive suggestion.

She said: "Maybe if you would take me to your house and keep me two or three days until they all got good and scared—if any one would get scared about me—maybe

The flowers did exactly what they pleased.

they would find out whether they love me or not, and if they did they would come and get me. And if they didn't, why then, maybe, your nice father would love me, too, and let me go on the walks with you and catch the little fishes and play in the water."

Then Amaryllis smiled the most enchanting smile that ever she could conjure up when there were tears back in her eyes and a tremble on her lips. She smiled through the tears and looked hard at John Guido and waited.

The boy thought it over and said: "I think you are right. It would serve them just the way they deserve. If nobody's taking care of you enough to keep you from running away like this and coming past a swamp where you might have drowned yourself if you had gotten into the muck, if no body cares enough about you to watch you any better than that, they ought to have a good scare. I think you are right about it. You come on with me. I can get you enough to eat to keep you alive, and I can take care of you all right and we will let them get scared as long as there is any scare left in them. And maybe, after that they will know better how to treat a little girl who needs her mother and her father and her brother."

John Guido reached down his hand and Amaryllis laid hers in it and trotted along beside him and so they went for a long, long distance.

They went so far that Amaryllis' feet became tender because they had not ever touched bare paths before. By and by, she shut her lips very tight because she would not tell John Guido that her feet hurt. But she could not keep from limping and finally he saw what the trouble was. So he knelt down and showed her how to climb on his back and put her arms around his neck and her feet against his sides. He took one of her feet in one of his hands and the violin and the bow in the other and she was careful not to hug him so tight that she would choke him. She laid her soft warm face down beside his and rubbed her cheeks over his hair. And she smelled like flowers, and her laugh rippled like running water and oriole notes.

So going, John Guido came into a bit of meadow that belonged to his father and then he left the water and followed down a well-beaten path between trees of willow and bushes of elder and wild sweet briar, past tall red lilies. He went on and on and finally he came to a garden. It was the most wonderful garden in all the world, because the flowers did exactly what they pleased. They nodded down and came up and soiled down again and ran into each other's arms and on past and scattered everywhere.

and all the vines ran sprawling over the ground or climbed trees or ran on top of the fence; and all the bulbs spread and grew in clusters and everything was wild and free. Instead of a big, locked bronze gate, an old wooden one hung on one hinge and it was just as wide open as it could get. Any one could run through and reach the meadow. Then at the far end of the garden there was a house.

The minute Amaryllis saw it she loved the house. It was not a big house at all. It was a low, flat house with a veranda running around it that needed loads of splinters in its railing. The steps needed straightening and everything needed paint. The bushes were wild as the garden, and the grass grew long and waved in the wind like hair. It was a quiet house, and a home-like house. You could see all of it without walking until you were tired.

Inside it was a wonderful house. There was one big room that smelled of pipes and tobacco, and there was a wide fireplace with heaps of wood beside it, and there was a big piano. The low laid the violin on top of that. There were easy chairs and shelves full of books all around the walls. On one side of this room there was a door leading to another room that was nearly all glass. In it there was a world of the most wonderful books, and pictures and more pictures. Some of them stood up on easels, and some of them hung on the walls, and many of them stood on the floors. Lots of them that stood on the floor turned their faces to the walls. It was a wonderful world. One could never become tired of it. There were doors that opened out of it into the garden, and onto the back porch; and if one went down the back porch far enough, one came to the dining-room; and next came the kitchen. In the kitchen John Guido looked up at the clock and said: "When it is five Marie will come to cook my supper and I will tell her that I am awfully hungry and I want lots of supper. Then I will have enough for you too."

Then John Guido stood still and thought things over.

He said: "But I will have to tell Marie to come and stay all night and sleep on the davenport beside your bed, because a girl has to have a governess or a nurse or somebody to undress her. You can have father's bed and sleep in his room and I will have my bed and sleep in my room."

Amaryllis said that was all right. She didn't like to wear shoes. She wanted her feet on the ground like little children in pictures, and pretty soon her feet would get used to the ground and then they would be tough like the boy's feet and they would not hurt any more. The boy went into his room and closed the door and left Amaryllis to eat her bread and honey.

By and by when he came out he was the most beautiful boy that Amaryllis had ever dreamed about. He wore dark blue velvet trousers, long ones, clear down to the floor, and a dark blue blouse and a little shirt of gold silk with a collar that came out over the coat collar, and cuffs that turned up over the coat sleeves. There were shiny shoes of patent leather and gold stockings on his feet.

He washed all the honey and bread crumbs from Amaryllis' face, and he said: "Now we must find a place to hide you if the searchers come to find you, because they need to do without you for several days at your house and then after that maybe they will be more careful as you said."

Giant Arctic Bear

The polar bear is a large bear (Ursus or Thalarctos maritimus) inhabiting the Arctic regions of both the Old and the New world. It attains a length of about 8 feet and often weighs more than 1,000 pounds. It frequents the shores and ice floes and swims well, living largely on seals. It differs from other bears in its creamy white color, long neck, narrow skull and small molar teeth.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

By GENE BYRNES

TOOK ALL DELIGHT FROM TRIP ABROAD

Traveler Writes Feelingly of Passport Picture.

A real gentleman came in the other day (he is my friend forever now; I have great confidence in his taste) and asked why not more stuff about that trip abroad. "I read every word of it," he swore glibly, and I almost believed him. Those things "get to you" easier as you get older. The excuse I made for not doing more of it was the fear of boring an already too indulgent public.

But this perfect gentleman had hardly left the office when another man came in to ask about the trip abroad. He was going over in May. How about it? He began to talk about the passport and the passport picture. I haven't fully got over the shock of the latter yet. And it seems such a little thing, too—that passport picture.

The trouble with the passport picture is, or one of them, that the photographer gentleman isn't out to flatter you. He doesn't "touch you" up any. You just sit there in the picture like a solemn or grinning Hindu idol, unregenerate, and in all your unadorned awfulness, unrelieved by shadow, without excuse and without hope in the world. Your skull bulges in the wrong places, your ears stand out and your bumps proclaim gluttony, licentiousness and avarice. Your expression is that of an unrecalled rooster when chased, startled and distraught.

I shall never forget it. I looked upon the passport picture after the shoot'n' was over and a perceptible shudder ran through me. Only by superhuman fortitude did I show it to a friend of forty years' standing in the office and with the bitter cry: "This can't look like me!" But he was relentless.

"It's exactly the way you look!" I gazed at it for a long time and I finally said with something like a sigh: "Anyhow, God loves me."

And that is what you have to go through to get the unflattering passport picture and to get over it before embarking on the great deep. It has taken away much of my desire to go to Europe again, if that has to be done over again. And I suppose, that must have been exactly the way I looked to the Europeans! They are certainly a polite race. Nobody said anything.

Of course, a man ought to forget himself; if he is out for a holiday, and just sit back and enjoy life. He should forget family, and friends, and early training, and the office, and business, and think of himself as a young millionaire poet and novelist tasting the nectar of life from the golden cup of the gods so freely held to his lips. And this I came very near doing. Once about a hundred and fifty miles from land, the remembrance of the passport picture somehow rolled off of my heart and buried itself fifty fathoms deep and I suffered a sea change into something new and strange, and began to take notice of a few of the companions de voyage—mostly feminine.—A. J. R., in the Minneapolis Journal.

Ingenious Advertising

The city of Berlin is proud of the stage settings provided for performances of notable works at its civic opera and is turning them to advertising advantage. In one of the windows of the large city information bureau which the municipality maintains near Potsdamer platz some especially good sets are reproduced in miniature. The brilliantly illuminated tiny stages with diminutive reproductions of the settings all in place inevitably attract the eye of the passerby. Realism is added to the scene by a Lilliputian figure or two of characters from the opera being advertised.

Spanking Was Waived

"No, Olive," said her father, who was ill in bed, "you mustn't climb up and kiss me. I have a sore throat." The child looked disappointed. "You may wave me a kiss, that will do just as well," he added to comfort her. The little one's natural activity had to have an outlet and a minute or two later she was up on a chair trying to reach something on the mantel. "Get down off that chair," commanded her father. "You will fall and break something." Olive was not promptly obedient. "Get down or I'll spank you." Olive looked at him and remembering, said: "Wave your spank, daddy; that will do as well."—Boston Transcript.

Prune Industry's Growth

The prune industry was started in the eastern United States in 1854, but failed because the climatic conditions were not favorable for the production of the desired qualities. About 1863 the industry started in California and grew rapidly. In 1910 the annual output was 150,000,000 pounds, of which nearly half was exported. Before the industry grew in California, France was the chief producing nation of the world. Oregon, Washington and Idaho also grow good prunes, as do Serbia, Bosnia, Germany, Spain, Australia and South Africa.

Natural Refrigeration

The natural cold-storage facilities of Alaska have been used advantageously in handling reindeer meat. In areas adjoining the Arctic coast solid ice is reached within three or four feet of the surface and extends downward to great depths. During the winter of 1925 one chamber large enough to hold 100 carcasses was excavated in the underground ice. In the spring the carcasses thus stored were removed in excellent condition for shipping.

Recalls Seven Years' War

Torres Vedras is a small town in Portugal, 25 miles northeast of Lisbon, rendered famous by the double line of fortifications constructed by Wellington in 1810. These famous lines protected Lisbon, the capital of Portugal, and gave Wellington's army a sure refuge when hard pressed by the numerically superior forces led by Marshal Massena. When the proper time came, Wellington advanced from behind the lines of Torres Vedras, and drove the enemy out of the peninsula.

Open Windows From Top

Many housewives have not yet learned the great advantage in having kitchen windows open from the top. They should be so opened especially when the housewife is working there. This arrangement lets the hot, used air out and the cool, fresh draft on the worker. According to economic experts at Pullman, Wash., the temperature should be maintained somewhere between 60 and 68 degrees Fahrenheit and the air should be constantly changing. Lack of fresh air makes one tired very quickly.
